Thurmon Lashes 'Intimidation' Of Army Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C. Friday denounced a Senate colleague's memorandum to the Defense Department as "a dastardly attempt to intimidate the commanders of U.S. armed forces."

Thurmond made his statement at a news conference called after Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark. said he had sent Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara a confidential memorandum objecting to military sponsorship of meetings featuring "extremist speeches" by outsiders.

"The point I wanted to make," Fulbright told reporters, "was that it is not the traditional role of the military to sponsor meetings weighted to one side of a political subject."

Fulbright said the principal theme of some meetings sponsored by generals and admirals has been "that the greatest danger to this country is internal communism, and that communism has infiltrated our schools and our churches and dominates our government."

Thurmond termed the memo, which was followed by new Defense Department restrictions on speeches by top military men, an effort to prevent U.S. commanders from teaching their troops "the nature of the menace of world communism."

Thurmond is a major general in the Army reserve.

"In the Defense Department among military personnel lies the real bastion of knowledge and understanding of the Communist threat, an understanding and knowledge long since lacking in the White House, the State Department and other agencies of the national government, if we are to judge by their actions," he said.

"Suppression of the military's dissemination of this knowledge would be disastrous."

Fulbright said the memorandum was prepared for his personal use by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is chairman.

He said he had sent copies to President Kennedy as well as to McNamara, and he believed "some one at the Pentagon" had leaked its contents. When reporters asked for a copy, Fulbright

U.S. Asks Cease Fire In Tunisia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The United States called on France and Tunisia Friday to order an "immediate cease-fire" in the fighting around the big French naval and air base at Bizerte.

The U. S. call was put forward as an informal proposal to an emergency session of the U. N. Security Council called by Tunisia to hear its charges that the French had committed aggression at Bizerte. Tunisia opened its case by accusing the French of using napalm bombs against the civilian population.

After Tunisia and France had blamed each other before the Security Council U. S. representative Charles W. Yost took the floor.

He said the United States views the crisis "with deep concern."

"Use of military force can only arouse passions and further complicate the problem," he said.

After expressing hope that the "far-sighted leadership" of Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and French President Charles de Gaulle would end the conflict, Yost called for an immediate cease-fire."

Yost said this and the return of forces from each side to the positions they held before the fighting broke out Thursday would enable a solution to be worked out.

'Anna' Picks Up Intensity

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —The winds of Hurricane Anna increased in intensity to 115 miles an hour Friday night, but she maintained a course which offered no threat to the U.S. mainland.

Anna, the season's first hurricane, was last located about 310 miles south-southeast of Kingston, Jamaica. It was headed west or west-northwest which would bring it inland on the coast of Nicaragua.

HE'S WET, BUT SAFE

Grissom Streaks 118 Miles In Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom successfully thundered 118 miles into the sky Friday only to wind up with a scramble for life from his flooded space craft and a swim.

Grissom, 35, was plucked wet but unscathed from the Atlantic Ocean 303 miles southeast of here by a helicopter only two minutes after abandoning his rapidly filling capsule.

The $2-million, instrument-laden capsule, Liberty Bell 7, sank beyond hope of recovery in 16,800 feet of water.

On his flight, Grissom attained a top speed of 5,280 miles per hour and thus became the fastest American ever, and the second American into space.

The first words spoken by the terse-talking Grissom, after landing on the prime recovery ship, the carrier Randolph, were these: "Give me something to blow my nose. My head is full of water."

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said Grissom reported the capsule's side escape hatch blew off accidently before the craft was hooked to a helicopter.

Grissom said he removed a safety pin preparatory to opening the exit and the explosive bolts which kept it secure fired inexplicably.

Grissom's space craft carried a new type hatch which was secured with 70 explosive bolts designed to hurl the hatch cover 25 feet in event of an emergency.

As soon as the hatch blew off, apparently, the seas rushed in. Grissom, in effect, floated out as he had been taught to do in training for such an emergency.

During his flight Grissom became so enthralled by the view from his 19-inch-high "picture window" that he reported he momentarily forgot to carry out his assigned chores.

At one point he exclaimed, "The sun is really bright."

Despite his improved view,

BACK TO NORMAL

'Now I Can Rest,' Smiles Space Wife

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)— "Now," said Betty Grissom, "I can rest for a few days and get back to normal."

Smiling and animated, the blonde, brown-eyed wife of America's second man in space stood before a battery of cameras and microphones on the lawn of her suburban home.

"I am happy that the flight was a success, but I almost cried when the capsule sank," she said. "I am so sorry the capsule was lost."

The wife of Capt. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom remained glued to her television screen until the astronaut was safe aboard the aircraft carrier Randolph. Then she came out and talked to newsmen. She was accompanied by her two sons, Scott, 11, and Mark, 7.

"We achieved a first today," said the 5-foot-1 Mrs. Grissom. "The boys and I talked by telephone to Gus as he lay flat on his back in the capsule before it was launched."

"He said if we stopped talking he could go to sleep," she added with a laugh. She said the remainder of their conversation was "personal."

Mrs. Grissom, 33, said, "I've always known it (her husband's space flight) would be a success." She said she prayed during the flight and that the most tense period for her was during "the last few seconds before liftoff."

Scott said he would have liked to be with his father on the space flight.

Tunisians Swept Out Of Bizerte

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Tunisia reported that French paratroopers seized control of almost all of Bizerte Friday night in eight hours of street fighting that inflicted heavy casualties on the Tunisian army.

The rout of the Tunisian army in Bizerte and the French defense bases around the city was so complete that President Habib Bourguiba sent an urgent telegram to the United Nations requesting permission to withdraw its troops from the U.N. Congo operation.

The French did not immediately confirm the Tunisian reports, and the Tunisian reports themselves were confused. They spoke of pockets of resistance in the governor's palace area and the main Arab sections of the city of 64,000.

French authorities appeared to be playing down the scope of the military operation which got underway at 12:15 p.m. with an artillery bombardment of Tunisian army positions that sent most of the city's 75 per cent Moslem population fleeing to the countryside in panic.

Paratroopers attacking behind a shield of tanks and rocket-firing planes swept through the suburbs and secured French outposts threatened by a Tunisian blockade. Then they won control of the strategic canal leading from the Mediterranean to Lake Bizerte behind the naval base.

The Tunisian information minister announced that the paratroopers and tanks occupied the center of Bizerte in eight hours of street fighting and then moved on toward the last holdout positions, supported by paratroops brought to Bizerte from Algeria by French warships.

The Tunisian announcement did not make clear what Tunisian troops remained in combat position in the city to face the all-out French drive to secure their hold on the Bizerte naval base, a keystone in French Mediterranean defenses.

The semi-official Tunisian news agency Tunis-Afrique-Presse reported meanwhile that Tunisia was ready to accept help "from wherever it comes and said Russia had expressed "heartfelt support" for the Tunisians in their hour of crisis.

(Moscow Radio warned Friday night the French-Tunisian fighting "threatens to grow into an international conflict" and attacked

City Mops Up Debris After Flash Floods

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—Federal and state authorities, aided by 2,000 volunteer workers, continued cleanup operations Friday in the wake of the most disastrous flood ever to hit this West Virginia capital city.

The official death toll of Thursday's cloudburst stood at 18 with the finding of one body today. State police reported they had found two bodies in the hard-hit Elk Two-Mile area, but extensive checks could not confirm this. A search was pressed for persons unaccounted for.

The body recovered was that of 5-year-old Alice Marie Null, whose two brothers also died in the devastating rush of water which swept away everything in sight and caused damage estimated to run into millions of dollars.

Partly Cloudy Skies Forecast

Weather in Monroe and area today will continue to be partly cloudy and warm.

The weatherman said today's high probably will be around 93, after a low this morning in th 70s. This very nearly duplicates Friday's readings when the high was 91, reached about mid - day, and the lowest registered was 74.

The barometer also showed little variation and read 29.85. However, there is some chance of thundershowers this evening and tonight.

Sunshine Saturday is epected at 5:16 a.m. and sunset at 7:13 p.m.

HOBBLES 2 MILES ON BROKEN LEG

Police Juror Narrowly Escapes Death In Mishap

By MARY ANN CORPIN
World Staff Writer

Ward five Police Juror Leslie Hamm narrowly escaped death Friday when his tractor tipped over on him and fell into an isolated pond.

Hamm crawled out before the tractor sank, hobbled almost two miles on a broken right leg, and finally obtained help shortly after 1 p.m. — four hours after the accident.

MOWING GRASS

The 42-year-old juror said that a friend, C. J. (Peck) Freeman, asked him to help mow the grass along the edge of Olin Mathieson's settling ponds in Bawcomville, since Hamm's tractor was better equipped to do the job.

"The tractor was sitting on a sharp incline on the side of the levee. I started to back up to catch the grass I'd missed, the tractor tilted and over it went," said Hamm, from his room in St. Francis hospital.

"I was able to crawl out before it settled in the pond . . . the mud held up momentarily or it would have caught me for sure," he said.

"The water really saved you," commented the Rev. Filer Seal, pastor of Highland Baptist church in West Monroe, who visited Hamm at the hospital.

LESLIE HAMM

"I crawled about three-quarters of a mile on the gravel until it ate up my hands and knees," Hamm related. "The pain from dragging my leg was just killing me. I cut some small splints from a pine tree and tied them around my leg with shoelaces.

MAKES CRUTCHES

"Then I cut some crutches from forked branches of the tree," he added.

Hamm walked on the crutches for about a mile and a quarter, then exhaustion from the pain forced him to halt and rest, within sight of some houses.

"I was going to walk home, but I needed to rest.'

"It was so hot, I fell half asleep, when a little boy came by and found me. He was a fine little boy but he was scared to death, he thought I was a tramp, the way I looked from being in the pond and crawling in the gravel.

"He started to run away, but I called him back, told him I had a broken leg, showed him the crutches and wrote down some phone numbers for him to give

Bugs Appear In 'Battle Of Bull Run'

MANASSAS BATTLEFIELD, Va. (AP)—Stage managers of this week's great sham battle of first Manassas (Bull Run) put the boys in Blue and Gray through preliminary paces Friday and found enough bugs in their tactics to defeat both armies.

Stone Jackson failed to arrive on time; the famed Hampton Legion of South Carolina turned its back to the enemy, and some of the Federals were chided by their task masters as acting like Boy Scouts.

All this happened in a prerehearsal walk-through this morning. A full-dress rehearsal followed this afternoon. The big show goes on Saturday and will be repeated Sunday.

Just 100 years ago Friday an untested Confederate Army under Gens. Joe E. Johnston and Pierre T. G. Beauregard put to rout a green host of Federals under Gen. McDowell in the first big struggle of the Civil War.

The re-enactment is being staged mostly by members of the North-South Skirmish Association, an organization of Civil War buffs.

Many of them are boys in their teens. They wear authentic uniforms of the period and fire real Civil War weapons. (For this occasion the weapons are loaded with blanks.)

Orders were slow to filter down to the troops this morning. This mock war correspondent, on his way to the battle area on Henry Hill, ran across Pvt. Michael Haines, New Providence, N.J., a member of the 2nd New Jersey Volunteer Infantry. He was carrying a rifle made in 1864. Asked what role his outfit would take in the battle, Haines said:

"They haven't told me yet. I guess we are supposed to fire at anybody in gray."

The regiments lined up in skeleton form, some of them containing only one or two men. Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Jackson—portrayed by George Bisacca of Lenox, Mass.—had business else-

Last British Forces Leave

KUWAIT (UPI) — Britain Friday pulled out almost all of its remaining emergency forces from Kuwait following recognition of the Persian Gulf sheikhdom's independence by all members of the Arab League with the exception of Iraq.

Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem claimed Kuwait as part of Iraqi territory last month after Britain ended a years-long protectorate over the oil-rich state. While denying he planned to use force, Kassem has continued to maintain the claim in the face of strong opposition from the Arab world.

Parish Receives Funds For Roads

Bobby J. Bayles Sr., 28-year-old ward five resident, is the new range rider and game warden for Ouachita parish.

The Police Jury selected Bayles over 15 other applicants at a special meeting Friday night.

President M. W. Montgomery also announced that the parish received $30,000 yesterday from the state legislature, to boost the sagging road fund from its $2,871.54 July 1 balance.

The money is part of a $50,000 yearly allocation from the state for road construction and repairs. Jurors hope to receive the additional $20,000 by November, for gravel placed on parish roads.

On July 6, the police jury met and learned that the parish had barely enough money to finish up the year.

ADOPT REVENUE LAW

At that time, the blacktopping fund stood at a healthy $143,730.07 and members decided to charge the fund for road machinery used in blacktopping, so that a transfer of money to the road fund could be made.

Members also adopted the 1961 revenue law for a total of 11.02 mills taxes on parish property, and tabled plans to motorize the gates of the Chenier Lake spillway.

Bayles, of 3208 Cypress St., West Monroe, is a lifelong resident of Ouachita parish.

He is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College for one and one-half years, and is a Korean combat veteran.

The new range rider states that he is experienced in handling

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (Special) —A Louisiana - Mississippi delegation running into its toughest opposition in Alabama, headed for Texas Friday night to seek final support for a Southern conference of municipal officials.

With good responses at Atlanta, Ga., and Talahassee, Fla., the delegation, headed by Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe, found opposition to the conference at Montgomery.

Ed E. Reid, executive director of the Alabama Municipal League, told the delegation and his executive committee that the organization of southern officials would not work.

"There is no need for this organization," said Reid. "Other than the integration issue, we don't have any problems down here."

While Reid's executive committee ended the meeting abruptly without taking action, three Alabama mayors vowed the state

Entire Work Force Leaves Red Sector

BERLIN (AP)—The entire work force of a small rope-making factory in East Germany—seven families—joined the thousands of refugees flowing into West Berlin Friday and gave this reason: "We all decided we just couldn't stand it any longer."

The man they told their troubles to was West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt. He toured the city's largest refugee center, Marienfelde, and assured fleeing East Germans Berlin will receive all their fellow countrymen who decide they can't live any longer under the Communists.

The former owner of the rope factory, who said he had been one of the few remaining businessmen in his area, told Brandt the six families with him were those of his former employes.

"It meant I had to give up the factory I inherited from my father and that my men don't know how they'll support their families, but we had to leave," he continued.

"And then we were worried the Communists might suddenly close off all the escape routes," his wife added.

The seven families numbering 28 persons, haggared and in shabby clothes, were loaded down with makeshift suitcases made of cardboard boxes. They explained they had left practically everything behind.

"It will all be confiscated and distributed among those who stay," one of the men said.

French Hit With Charge Of Massacre

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Tunisia called on the U.N. Security Council Friday to help force all French military personnel from Tunisian territory.

Mongi Slim, the Tunisian delegate, charged before an urgent session of the 11-nation council that the population of Bizerte "is being massacred" by French attackers. He accused French paratroopers of committing atrocities on civilians, and said French planes dropped napalm — jellied gasoline—bombs on Tunisian positions outside the naval base of Bizerte.

French Delegate Armand Berard categorically denied the napalm bomb charge. As for atrocities, he said the language of denials of other Tunisian charges transmitted to him by his government made him hope that this latest accusation was unfounded "and does not correspond to reality."

He warned Tunisia not to take reprisals against French civilians in that country.

Slim and Berard engaged in a final exchange before the council adjourned at 8:06 p.m., until 10 a.m. Saturday.. It had met for five hours on the French-Tunisian crisis set off by the battle over Bizerte.

Earlier, Berard asserted Tunisia fired the first shot on Wednesday and that French counteraction was taken in self-defense.

Tapes Show Gus Planned 'Blow Out'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Radio tapes played back hours after his flight into space showed astronaut Gus Grissom planned to "blow out" the escape hatch on his capsule — but a controversy raged over whether he actually did.

Grissom said "No." A Federal Space Agency spokesman quoted him as saying "the hatch came off unexpectedly" and that he "does not know why."

But the fact that the 35-year-old spaceman intended to do so was revealed later in his recorded conversation with a helicopter crew hovering over his capsule in the Atlantic Ocean 303 miles from the cape:

Grissom: "Tell me when you are ready to go. I am going to have to take my helment off and blow the hatch off. Taking my helmet off, power down and blowing the hatch."

Helicopter: "And when you blow the hatch, the helicopter will already be down that way."

Whatever triggered the explosive bolts which blasted the emergency hatch from the capsule, it opened the spacecraft to ocean waves. Within seconds, "Liberty Bell 7" was flooded and began sinking in more than three miles of water — lost forever.

The Space Agency said Grissom after a 15-minute flight 118 miles into space, "asked for several minutes for a post-landing checkout procedure" after the capsule landed.

A part of this last-minute work, spokesman said, was "to remove a cover over an actuator and remove a pin. When this is accomplished, the plunger which blows the hatch becomes armed."

But, said the official, "Gus to his mother, to call some help for me," Hamm said.

The youngster's mother called Mrs. Hamm and Kilpatrick ambulance. The boy, unidentified, waited on the main highway for the ambulance and guided it to the spot where the Police Juror was waiting.

"I was so happy to be in the ambulance," Hamm said.

The accident took place at 9:30 a.m. He reached the hospital at 1:20 p.m. By then his leg was swollen so badly that it could not be set, and he was covered with bruises, particularly where the pine limb "crutches" cut into him.

"The doctor sayd it's a complete break, just above the ankle, and that it will be three to six months before I'm able to walk on it again," Hamm said.

The leg must be broken again and reset sometime next week after the swelling has gone down.

Asked how he would take care of his farm while he is convalescing, Hamm said he plans to make arrangements to get a custom operator to bale most of his hay, and that he has an employee who will look after the cattle and keep them partially fed.

"I sure did want to be at the Police Jury meeting tonight, too," he said, speaking of the special meeting set for Friday night to hire a new range rider.

the United States for what it said was notorious "support of the French hosition over Bizerte.")

The Tunisian news agency said the final assault on the center of the city was carried out by French troops which disembarked directly from one of the warships which steamed into the canal.

The Tunisian route in Bizerte was reported so complete that President Bourguiba sent an urgent cable to United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold asking him to send home "as quickly as possible" the three Tunisian battalions in the Congo.

"Only a situation ... which puts the security and integrity of my country's territory in danger forces me to make this request," his cable said.

Tunisian sources said the heart of the city was occupied at 6:40 p.m. by two units of French paratroopers backed by assault tanks.

The number of casualties in three days of fighting was not known. At least 200 Tunisians were reported dead and "hundreds" more wounded as the casualty toll neared the 1,000 mark. The French admitted five of their men dead and a few score wounded.

commercial and open range cattle, pastured and wild hogs. He is familiar with the laws concerning both commercial and game fish.

A fur buyer in Northeast Louisiana, he said he knows the laws concerning wildlife and fur bearing animals.

Bayles states that he is familiar with the rural section of the parish, owns horses, a truck trailer and dogs.

He is married and the father of four children.

Bayles will fill the post vacated by past range rider Joe Brown.

Other applicants included: George Warren, ward eight; Grady Roberts, Sterlington Road; Jerome T. Sikes, ward two; Fred Anding; Wallace Dawkins, ward five; E. B. Head, 217 Malvern St.; Harry R. Wood Jr., West Monroe; A. O. (Red) Milstead, Arkansas Road, West Monroe; Mike J. Battaglia, ward one; Frank Paul Ticheli, 2516 Lee Ave; Woody Mack O'Netl, 707 Pine St., West Monroe; Ralph E. Lee, 1413 S. Fourth St.; E. J. Sawyer, 307 Bryant Ave., Ward 10; H. M. Campbell, 5600 DeSiard Rd.; John P. Bennett, ward four.

On the first ballot, Sikes, Anding and Bayles each received two votes, while eight other applicants drew one vote each. The second ballot saw six votes each for Anding and Bayles, with two for Sikes.

On the third ballot, Bayles received eight votes, Anding six. Anding had served as range rider for five and one-half years, until he resigned in 1960.

Fourteen jurors were present. Ward five's Lelie G. Hamm is sidelined in St. Francis hospital with a broken leg, and W. O. Roberts of ward seven was out of town.

The 1961 revenue law is an increase of one and one-fourth mills over last year's taxes. This is caused by the jail extension, approved by a May 9 election.

A breakdown on the taxes shows the following figures:

Four mills general fund, to pay all parish expenses.

Two mills special tax, assessment on property in Monroe and West Monroe.

Special tax of .22 of a mill on parish property.

Tax of .70 of a mill on parish property to pay interest on maturing library bonds, approved in the August 14, 1956 election.

One-half of a mill special tax to maintain and support the parish library.

One mill special tax to operate and maintain the Ouachita Parish health unit.

Two cents per acre on all woodland in the parish.

One-fourth mill assessment on the value of all property in the parish, to maintain and support the library.

Two mills for the road lighting district — this is not added into the 11.02 mill total.

One-fourth mill tax to support and improve the Green Oaks detention home.

Two mill tax for blacktopping parish roads and highways.

One-half mill maintenance tax to support and improve drainage canals.

One-fourth mill tax to pay for bonds used to acquire the Cheniere Lake property from Dixie Lumber Co.

One-tenth mill to maintain and support Cheniere Lake.

Three - fourths of a mill to acquire land and construct the jail extension.

One-half mill to maintain, support and improve the jail extension.

Montgomery read a letter from Claude Kirkpatrick, state director of public works, which enclosed a report by chief engineer Leon R. Kirst, concerning the jury's inquiry on how the Cheniere Lake spillway gates could be motorized.

Kirst said that equipment would cost about $5,150, with total cost estimated at $13,500.

This sounded like too much money to the jury, so they tabled the matter.

They approved an application from R. B. Lawrence of ward three, Truman Drive in Richwood addition, for a beer permit, and from John Joseph, ward 10, Booth Street, for a whiskey license.

Jurors agreed to purchase an $85 robe for recently - elected Fourth District Judge Mack Barham.

They also were invited to attend the Wildlife Unit's fishfry in Area four of Cheniere Lake at 6 p.m. Monday.

REDS BANNED

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A law making permanent the emergency ban on Communist, Peronist and other antidemocratic organizations was proposed Friday by President Arturo Frondizi's government. never pulled the plunger." Less than three minutes later, the 70 explosive bolts knocked the hatch loose forced Grissom to scramble into the water to keep from being trapped.

Scientists said that "as far as we concerned, Grissom followed all the proper procedures during the post-landing checkout."

The radio transcript ended abruptly with that last exchange between Grissom and the helicopter. The space agency noted that "the rest of the recording was "unaudible (sic)."

Seconds after the Redstone rocket blasted aloft, Grissom told Austronaut Alan B. Sheppard — on the other end of the radio hook-up at a control center on the cape — "Okey-doke. It's a nice ride up to now."

As the rocket soared and acceleration forces crushed him into a padded couch, the stocky Air Force captain reported firmly "Everything is good, cabin pressure holding, suit pressure is okay . . . I could feel the hand controller move just a hair there. . ."

Reports Black Sky

Upward he flew, until the booster dropped away and hurled him into a state of weightlessness for five minutes "There went the posigrades, capsule separated and we are at zero 'G' and turning around and the sun is really bright."

He peeked into space through a "picture window" observation port over his head and told Sheppard, ". . . The sky is very, very black."

Then Grissom seemed to run a bit late in his work, after reporting that "All I can really see is clouds. I haven't seen any land any place yet . . . I am on the window. It is such a fascinating view out the window you just can't help but look out that way."

But clouds marred his view of earth :"I can see the coast, but I can't identify anything."

The capsule arched through the sky and began its plunge. Grissom's deceleration forces soared to 11 "G's" and shock waves buffeted his capsule at 50,000 feet. Still he reported "I am feeling good, very good."

Grissom looked again through his observation window — into a dark spot in the middle of his red-and-white capsule parachute. He recognized it and clamly told recovery ships "You might make a note there is a small hole in my chute. It is about six inches by six inches.

Bids On Health Unit May Be Taken This Fall

Dr. W. Carroll Summer, Ouachita parish health unit director, said Friday that bids on the new health unit construction may be taken before Thanksgiving.

"The preliminary floor plan is complete," he said, and added that architect Roy Johns hopes to have the actual design complete by October.

"We're moving along as fast as possible with it," Summer said.

The $400,000 new unit, plus regional laboratory, will be constructed on DeSiard Street, just west of Eastgate shopping center.

When the plans and specifications are drawn up, they will be submitted to the U. S. Public Health Service in Dallas and the Louisiana department in New Orleans for approval.

After approval, the parish Police Jury will call for bids, open the bids 30 days after advertisement, and award the contract to the low bidder

Atop a steel tower Maj. Gen. James C. Fry, ret., in charge of the show, barked directions by public address system. Sample barkings:

— "Hey there, you men of the Hampton Legion, never turn your back on the enemy. Always face him as you retire.

— "You Union men there, please don't run around like a bunch of Boy Scouts.

— "Will the Confederate line please advance. Jackson's men please move. If the Confederate line can move, will it please do so. Oh my goodness, the Union line has decided to withdraw and the Confederates won't move."

Military Outlay Calls For Tax Hikes — Dillon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon has told President Kennedy that any substantial new military outlays to meet the Berlin crisis should be offset by tax increases, it was reported Friday.

Treasury officials speculated that such a boost would apply to corporate and excise levies, but not to personal income taxes.

Should the President take Dillon's advice, it might mean trouble for some of his key domestic proposals which involve big new federal spending. Critics would be sure to cite the tax load as an argument against them.

Kennedy indicated at his news conference Wednesday that tax increases might not be necessary. But he did not rule them out.

The President's key cabinet-level aides have thoroughly reviewed the budget situation in the light of higher defense costs, paying particular attention to taxes.

What the administration finally decides will hinge on these points:

—The cost of military buildups the President is ordering bcause of new Communist threats to Berlin. There have been reports the increases might total $2 billion to $3 billion—possibly even $5 billion.

—Kennedy's stand on Dillon's advice that the budget deficit for fiscal 1962 should not be allowed to go over previous predictions. The official forecast is $3.7 billion, but Budget Bureau officials have conceded privately that the figure might go as high as $5 billion.

—Whether Congress would go along with any request for higher taxes.

The consensus on Capitol Hill is that Kennedy would have to backtrack on some of his programs to get a tax hike through Congress. He would have difficulty keeping the support of some Southern Democrats who have provided crucial votes on his domestic proposals.

Court Action Is Slated For 'Rider' Pair

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A New York lawyer said Friday he was planning to file court action in an effort to free two "Freedom Riders" he said were jailed at state penitentiary in violation of the state constitution.

Attorney William Kunstler, who works for the American Civil Liberties Union, said he felt confinement of Freedom Riders at state penitentiary on a misdemeanor charge was a violation of the state constitution.

He planned to file bills of complaint in state court early next week

Grissom Streaks 118 Miles In Sky

Grissom reported he was unable to pick up any landmarks because the ground was obscured by clouds.

Nine minutes after launch and as he re-entered the atmosphere, Grissom reported, "I feel good. Everything is looking good."

On the flight Grissom controlled his ship by releasing hydrogen peroxide gas from small jets. He made the ship yaw, pitch and roll.

At two points on the flight — and despite installation of supposedly improved equipment — voice communications with Grissom faded.

Grissom's big adventure began at 7:20 a.m. EST and ended with a small splash as the two-ton capsule was lowered into the water by a parachute 16 minutes later.

Then came the near tragedy of the hatch explosion.

Previous experiments with the capsule indicated that it filled almost complete 10 seconds after water reached the lower edge of the hatch opening.

In any case, NASA officials said that the loss of the capsule was not expected to slow U.S. preparations for an orbital flight late this year or in early 1962.

Robert C. Gilruth, Project Mercury director, said most of the vital information needed for the orbital program was obtained through telemetry—radio data recorders.

Gilruth bemoaned only the loss of the cameras and film installed in the space craft to record Grissom's reactions and to scan the instrument panels.

With this flight Grissom became the second American — and the third human—to enter space.

On May 5, Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., hurtled 302 miles along the same general flight path atop a similar Redstone rocket, reached an altitude of 116 miles and a maximum speed of 5,100 miles per hour.

The first human into space was the Soviet Union's Maj. Yuri A. Gagarin, who orbited the earth for 108 minutes on April 12 at peak altitude of 187 miles. His speed was nearly 17,000 miles per hour.

President Kennedy watched Friday's flight on television in Washington and then telephoned Grissom aboard the Randolph to express his "great pleasure and satisfaction" with the success.

While the President telephoned after the flight, Grissom's pretty and petite wife, Betty, telephoned before—and carried on the first wife-astronaut conversation in history while the husband was inside a missile-mounted space ship.

From her home in Newport News, Va., Mrs. Grissom and her sons, Scott, 11, and Mark, 7, talked to Grissom during the three hours and 22 minutes he spent on his space couch before launch.

After his 15-minute ride, Grissom was given a brief physical examination aboard the Randolph and then flown at 11 a.m., to Grand Bahama Island where he will remain for 48 hours for a more through examination.

Aboard the Randolph a spokesman for the space agency quoted Dr. Jerome Strong, an Army physician and one of the medics assigned to Grissom, as saying. "Our shipboard examination finds no abnormalities. He is in excellent spirits except that he feels unhappy about the capsule.

"Both Dr. Robert Laning of the Navy and I are pleased that he is in such excellent shape. All tests and observations are within normal limits."

While there apparently was never any danger that Grissom in his buoyant space suit would sink once he cleared the space capsule, the attempt to retrieve the water-filled capsule nearly produced a tragedy.

While one Marine helicopter went to Grissom's aid, a second tried to latch onto the sinking capsule — and the water-added weight nearly caused an engine failure.

Grissom was actually dragged from the water in a sling lowered from the "backup" helicopter whose crew were Capt. Phillip Upschulte of Quincy, Ill., and Lt. George Cox of Eustis, Fla.

While Upschulte and Cox were seeking to hoist Grissom into the cabin, the primary helicopter piloted by Lt. James Lewis of Lufkin and Houston, Tex., with Lt. John Reinhard of Bloomington, Ill., hooked onto the capsule despite engine trouble—which had caused Upschulte to take over.

At this point little more than the rescue ring atop the 9-foot-high capsule was showing above water. As the engines of the helicopter strained against the added weight, a warning light flashed on the chopper's instrument panel indicating that the overworked engines were about to quit. The capsule was then cut loose and allowed to sink.

Meantime, Upschulte's craft was hovering over Grissom, who had now stroked his way about 70 feet from his spacecraft.

The wind force from the big fan-like blades drove Grissom under the surface momentarily and then he bobbed up like a cork to reach for his "horse collar" through which he slipped his arms.

After his dip, Dr. Laning reported, Grissom was "a bit shaky" but soon relaxed and had a second breakfast of orange juice, fried eggs and bacon.

Fines Levied By City Judge In West Monroe

West Monroe City Judge John McCormick Friday fined two persons for public drunkenness, while handing down fines in connection with six minor traffic violations.

Forfeiting bonds of $40 each on charges of appearing in public in an intoxicated condition were Jack Moses, 39, of 112 Drago in West Monroe, and a 45 year old West Monroe Negro, Aaron Carter, of 800 North Seventh St.

Bonds, ranging from $3 to $25.50, also were forfeited in the traffic cases. Fined were Harold Roth Jr., of 107 Fernwood in West Monroe; R. E. Tornquist, of Jackson, Miss.; Minnie C. Fisher, Route 4, West Monroe; C. R. Austin, 103 Shalimar Dr., West Monroe; James L. Sullivan, 1120 Bennie Breece, West Monroe, and a Negro, Floyd E. Armstrong, of Route 1, Downsville.

Three cases involving refusal to tie onto city sewage service were nolle prossed. J. L. White, 110 Height St., W. C. Kauffman, 2500 North Ninth, and R. J. Taylor, 2431 North Seventh St., all of West Monroe, decided to make the necessary connections.

would have a good representation at the conference in Memphis, Tenn., August 11-12.

Mayor Earl James, Montgomery, Mayor Chris B. Heinz, Selma, and Mayor J. W. Oakley Sr., of Centreville, voiced support for the conference.

At Atlanta early yesterday Howard, Sidney Gray, executive director of the Louisiana Municipal Association, and W. J. Carraway, executive vice president of the Mississippi Municipal Association, met with 15 Georgia municipal officials.

Winning support in Atlanta, the delegation arrived in Tallahassee for a luncheon meeting with municipal officials from north Florida.

Mayor J. W. Cordell of Tallahassee, after meeting with the delegation, said: "The NAACP is organized; CORE is organized it is time the South is organized. We'll see you in Memphis."

Howard, Gray and Carraway arrived at Montgomery two hours later where the Alabama committee was waiting.

Reid began, "I don't see how it would be possible for you to go to Memphis and set up a policy when so many of our leagues disagree. It would be impossible to bring the leagues under one banner for the South."

Heinz added, "I think that the meeting of minds of the people of 11 states would be good."

Oakley chimed in, "Our people are mostly concerned with segregation — that has got to be included."

With a city election in Houston Saturday, the delegation dropped plans to meet with a committee there Friday night and headed to Austin for conferences there today.

Kennedy To Relax At Home

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — President Kennedy arrived at his Cape Cod home Friday night to spend a weekend relaxing with his family and working on the major defense speech he will make to the nation next Tuesday.

The President's Air Force jet transport landed at Otis Air Force Base, Mass., at 6:10 p.m. EDT after 58-minute flight from Andrews Air Force Base, Md. He then flew 22 miles by helicopter to his seaside home here.

He spent most of the flight from Washington closeted in his cabin with several aides.

The President plans to return to Washington Monday morning, Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said.

He said the President's "prime effort over the weekend" will be to work out the speech he will deliver to the nation Tuesday night.

However, Salinger said Kennedy also hopes for some relaxation with his wife and two children, who are spending the summer at Hyannis Port. The President will go boating if the weather permits, Salinger said.

Traveling with Kennedy was Seymour Harris, professor of political economics at Harvard University. He is author of several books including "Economics of Mobilization and Inflation" published in 1951.

Also accompanying Kennedy were his science adviser, Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner, and his brothers-in-law, Sargent Schriver, director of the Peace Corps, and Stephen Smith.

Rabbi, 8 Other Ministers Given Fines, Sentences

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) —City Judge James Spencer convicted nine religious leaders and four "Freedom Riders" Friday for breach of peace in their attempts to desegregate an airport terminal and a bus station.

He sentenced all 13 to $200 fine and 4 months in jail, the maximum sentence.

The four riders offered no testimony, according to an agreement between their attorney and the city attorney that their trial was a continuation of earlier rider trials that convicted 243 others.

Rabbi Allan Levine of Bradford, Pa., one of the religious leaders arrested at the airport, testified that after seeing a group of fellow ministers off on an airplane Thursday night, he and eight other ministers tried to get coffee in the airport cafe.

He said Police Capt J. L. Ray stopped them short of the door, ordered them to move out of the terminal and arrested them when they refused.

Defense Atty. Jack Young asked Levine if he intended to breach the peace and Levine answered: "I don't appreciate or like belligerence of any sort."

He said he was in Jackson to attend a meeting of religious leaders discussing racial problems in The North and South.

Before the meeting broke up Thursday, a spokesman for the group said some ministers planned to act individually and test the state segregation laws at the transportation terminals.

Such testing landed the 243 riders in jail.

The nine religious leaders convicted Friday were:

Dr. James T. Carey of Berkeley, Calif., president of the Catholic Interracial Council; Rabbi Allen Levine of Bradford, Pa.; Rabbi Joseph Gumbiner of Hillel Foundation at the University of California, Berkeley; The Rev. Francis Gedders of San Francisco; the Rev. John Washington of San Francisco, a Negro; Mr. and Mrs. Russ Jorgensen of San Francisco; and Orville Luster of Daly City, Calif., American Friends Service Committee, a Negro.

The four riders convicted were:

Joel Ben Greenberg, 21, of Baltimore, Md.; Paul Brienes, 20, of Scarsdale, N.Y.; Ruth Esther Moskowitz, 25, of Brooklyn, N.Y.,; and Donna Sage Garde, 25, of New York City, all white.

URGES AID SUPPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Catholic Association for International Peace urged President Kennedy Friday to "go to the American people with a renewed plea" for support of the U.S. foreign aid program.

It predicted that "the results would be overwhelmingly favorable" if the President presents the program "not merely as a reaction to Communist threats" but as a positive attempt to relieve human suffering.

Republican Asks Kennedy For Ban On Secret Moves

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Friday called on President Kennedy and all presidents who follow him to impose an inviolable ban against secret diplomatic agreements.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Indiana department of the American Legion, Capehart blamed secret agreements to the partition of Germany during World War II for the present Berlin crisis.

"Any moment now, I expect the President will call to active duty hundreds of thousands of our reserve forces to face the results of a secret agreement which placed us in an intolerable, precarious, and almost untenable position in Berlin," he said.

MISSIONARIES

Gizenga's Troops Arrest Americans

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Congolese troops loyal to Antoine Gizenga, Soviet-backed leader in Oriental Province, have arrested 30 American missionaries on charges of distributing anti-Communist leaflets, the United Nations announced Friday.

The United States Embassy here had no immediate information on the arrests which took place at Bakwame in the Gizenga-controlled province, according to the U.N.

There was some confusion over the report because the American U.S. missionaries in that sector of Oriental Province. It could not explain the reported presence of nine additional missionaries.

However, the United Nations immediately dispatched a joint U. N. and Congolese army patrol to investigate.

It was not known if the captured missionaries included women and whether the arresting troops acted on their own initiative or on orders from Gizenga.

A new political problem developed between the United Nations and the Central government here, meanwhile, over Charles Badjoko, former minister in the Stanleyville government.

Morrison And OAS

Despite the angle of paying a political debt, it is to be hoped that the appointment and confirmation of former Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans to the post of ambassador to the Organization of American States may prove of some value to this country.

Morrison has some qualifications and ability and if he devotes himself to the task of winning the friendship of the American States, without being influenced too much by President Kennedy's idea of trying to buy them, his appointment may well be as good as any that could have been expected.

When the people of New Orleans rejected Morrison's bid for another term as mayor, by turning down the proposed amendment to allow him to run again, it was a foregone conclusion that he would get some kind of federal position. Kennedy, who believes in paying political debts, was obliged to give Morrison something for his part in putting Louisiana in the Kennedy column in the presidential race.

Morrison was especially earnest in Kennedy's behalf. This was a further reason for Kennedy to give him an appointment and thus adhere to the ties that bind.

Regardless of how much or how little he may have had to do with it, the city of New Orleans progressed toward its full potential as one of the great cities of this country, particularly through increased trade with the nations of South and Central America, during Morrison's administration.

It is to be hoped that the filling of the post of ambassador to the Organization of American States will serve to improve our relations with Latin America. For almost six months, our friends to the south of us have had no clear indication as to whom and with whom they could communicate with respect to problems affecting mutual interests.

During this period we have allowed the situation in Panama to become so serious that the president is threatening to resign because he has been unable to make any progress in obtaining economic aid from the United States, although this country has been handing out aid freely to almost all of the countries of the world, including many communist nations.

Our policy toward the Dominican Republic has been allowed to drift badly since the assassination of General Trujillo last May 30. Despite the fact that law and order were quickly re-established and that an efficient transition government has control of the situation, we have failed to develop an affirmative policy toward the Dominican Republic.

This, of course, is true as far as our relations with most countries are concerned. About the only policy that has been demonstrated has been with our enemies and not our friends and it has been a policy of appeasement.

Many intellectuals, or braintrusters, express the fear that we must not associate ourselves with the caretaker government of the Dominican Republic because we might offend the so-called neutral nations of the world. What these "idealists" fail to realize is that we stand the chance of losing a friend and an ally, without any real hope of enlisting the support of the so-called neutral leaders in our battle to stem the tide of communism.

It seems safe to say that if former Mayor Morrison is not compelled to kowtow too much to Kennedy's one-worldism and that if he is allowed to use his own judgment in attempting to cement the friendship of the American States his success will be greater than if he is merely a pawn in Kennedy's hands.

2 Parties, 4 Factions

Division within existing political parties in the United States has caused many voters to wonder if it wouldn't be better to overhaul our national organizations along liberal and conservative lines.

The present argument between Republicans Goldwater and Rockefeller over the Newburgh, New York, welfare issue points up such a need. Both the senator from Arizona and the governor of New York are potential candidates for president in 1964.

Yet Governor Rockefeller wants continued heavy welfare rolls in Newburgh while Senator Goldwater has voiced approval of the city's plan to crack down on payments and applicants.

This is no argument representing two views on reaching a common solution. It is a tale of conflict. And the story reaches all the way back to Thomas E. Dewey and Robert Taft.

In 1944, Dewey opposed the late Franklin D. Roosevelt for the latter's fourth term as president. But there was no contest. Whatever GOP candidate Dewey thought about the 'new deal" and domestic developments during World War II, he kept to himself. He did not criticize his opposition because he was convinced the people would not vote against the Roosevelt "liberals."

In 1948, Dewey tried again. The GOP thought their man was more popular this time and would win over Truman in a walk. Again, the Democrats talked the liberal line. Even with the Southern Democrats off to one side with candidate Strom Thurmond, Truman won.

This split in the Democratic party also points up the fact that the national organization does not serve as a means of expression for the many persons who follow that banner. That is as true today as it was in 1948.

Even though Eisenhower was the Republican standard bearer in 1952, the Dewey strategy was applied again. The late Senator Robert Taft, unsuccessful contender for the nomination, wanted to talk issues instead of politics. History may prove that his focusing of public attention on faults of the Truman administration actually put a Republican president in office for eight years.

The mixup in both major parties has not become any clearer in their stands on current issues.

Senator Goldwater, leader of the conservative wing of the GOP, plunged into the Newburgh hassle on the side of the local government.

Governor Rockefeller supported federal views of continued high welfare payments.

Prominent Democrats are similarly split over such issues as civil rights, federal aid to education and foreign aid.

From a politician's viewpoint, this extreme growth of factionalism within the national parties may be no more than "something to keep the game alive."

But national parties from the voter's point of view should serve as agencies to represent certain areas of thinking. And at this time, such a function is not being carried out.

Crisis Explodes In Panama

President Of That Country Threatens To Resign Because United States Won't Provide Assistance

The small but crucially strategic Republic of Panama is on the verge of again exploding in a grave crisis.

President Roberto Chiari, vigorously anti-Castro and friendly to this country, is threatening to throw up his job in protest against what he considers the inexplicable failure to obtain long-sought U. S. economic aid.

Particularly outraging Chiari is his inability to get $20 million in loans or grants for low-cost housing.

He has been trying to get these funds since taking office last fall. The housing plan was first submitted to the Eisenhower Administration, but got nowhere. After President Kennedy took over, the proposal was again presented—but has continued to gather dust despite his oft-touted Alliance for Progress in Latin America.

Chiari's backstage threat to resign comes at an especially awkward time for two reasons:

(1) The special meeting of the Inter-American Economic & Social Council, slated to convene in Uruguay on August 5, is to be the stage for strenuous U. S. efforts in behalf of the Alliance for Progress. Administration sources had indicated the President would attend this parley, although that now seems unlikely due to the ominous Berlin crisis and the difficulties being encountered putting the highly controversial $4.8 billion foreign aid bill through Congress.

(2) The strong probability that Chiari's resignation might lead to a renewal of the tumult and violence that caused a serious Panama crisis a few years ago. This time a pro-Castro seizure might be attempted. An active Castro underground is known to exist in Panama, and Chiari has been determinedly combatting it.

Under Panamanian law, he would be succeeded by either the First Vice President, Dr. Sergio Gonzalis Ruiz, who is also Minister of Health in Chiari's cabinet, or by the Second Vice President, Colonel Jose Domindor Bazan, head of Colon, second largest city in that country.

Neither is deemed strong enough to preserve order and avert a possible government overthrow.

STRANGE MYSTERY — Congressional leaders alarmed by this explosive situation are baffled by the Administration's laxity in doing anything about it.

Notwithstanding the President's frequently-avowed concern about improving Latin American relations, particularly through the $500 million-funded Alliance for Progress, Chiari's repeated pleas for help have fallen on deaf ears.

Representative Daniel Flood, D-Pa., who has long been warning about a "Panama danger zone," arranged for Ambassador Augusto Arango to confer with President Kennedy on much-needed economic aid. The president assured him he would personally look into the matter.

But months have passed and nothing has happened.

So Chiari, in despair, has finally sent word to both the White House and State Department that he has decided to retire to private life unless the U. S. acts promptly on his long-pending economic aid requests.

It remains to be seen what the Administration will do — if anything.

Fidel Castro has boasted that a pro-Castro regime will be in power in Panama "by 1962." The beefy Cuban dictator is also known to be planning to send a delegation to the Inter-American economic conference in Uruguay. There have been hints he may decide to appear there himself, especially if President Kennedy attends.

That's one reason Secretary Rusk is advising against it.

The State Department chief contends that regardless of whether Kennedy and Castro actually meet, the latter would use the occasion for characteristically turbulent propaganda demonstrations.

The FBI has definitely established that one of the 10-member prisoner delegation Castro sent to the U. S. to negotiate a tractor exchange is a Communist agent.

Also that only two of these emissaries were actually selected by the 1,200 captives. All the others were handpicked by Castro, despite his claim the entire group was chosen by the prisoners.

MORE GRIM PRESSURE — Russia is reinforcing its already-large forces in East Germany. More than 15,000 Soviet troops have arrived there in the last few weeks. They are being used to bring the 20 Soviet divisions up to full combat strength. That is now estimated at around 90 per cent for most of the divisions. . . The Kremlin may declare all bus and underground transportation in Moscow free. This dramatic announcement is reportedly slated for the Communist Party Congress in Moscow in October. According to authoritative Iron Curtain sources, if the free transportation scheme works in Moscow, it will be extended to other Russian cities.

THE LADIES — The First Lady inadvertently interrupted a high-powered White House conference and got a wry reaction. Mrs. Kennedy was showing Senator Clinton Anderson, D.-N. M., and Representative J. T. Rutherford, D.-Tex., through the historic mansion while discussing with them legislation they are sponsoring to ensure that art and antiques given the White House become permanent government property. Purpose of that is to prevent the loss of such treasures as happened in the past. She escorted the two lawmakers into a study on the second floor, which she thought was empty, only to find the President meeting there with Defense Secretary McNamara, General Maxwell Taylor and several other high officials. The First Lady apologized for the interruption, to which the President replied with a rueful smile, "Oh, that's all right. We're just discussing some small matters, like the Berlin crisis." . . . Senators Margaret Chase Smith, R.-Me., and Maurine Neuberger, D.-Ore., are doing their swimming at their own and not taxpayers' expense. They have declined an invitation from their 98 male colleagues to use the $50,000 white-tiled swimming pool in the multi-million dollar new Senate Office Building.

Emotion Strain

Doctor Thinks This Is Greatest Cause Of Heart Ailments

According to Dr. William B. Terhune, medical director of Silver Hill Foundation, individuals must have a design for living to be successful.

I think each one of us should stand off and try to look at ourselves objectively. Especially, if you do work that is important and weighted with stress.

Dr. Terhune says: "The typical executive is brilliant and dynamic, but emotionally repressed and driven by his own ego, business factors, social stresses, and even recreational fatigue. This we have found in examining men who have come to us for a six-day emotional and physical checkup."

He believes that emotional strain is a greater precipitating cause of coronary disease in men over 50 than any other factor. "The emotional strain is not always related to work. These men are restless; they always react and overdo, no matter what they are engaged in. It is this very restlessness which causes them to be successful in the material field, but over-active in social and recreational undertakings, as well as work.

These people are dynamic, competitive, driven executives, with a smiling surface of friendliness, but miserably unhappy. To survive and continue successfully, they must have a healthy design for living which they follow meticulously."

The answer to this is a balanced life in terms of work, rest, exercise, and play. According to Dr. Terhune: "Man's life stands on a tripod of three factors—religion, work, and love. Let any of these be absent from a man's life, and there is danger of his toppling."

Not until the starry-eyed young married couple have their first baby do they realize what life is all about. Romantic love flies out the window and is replaced by love fortified by trials and problems that come with the raising of a youngster.

When you're suddenly confronted with the complete responsibility of caring for a new human being (especially when it's your's—biologically or adopted) you grow up fast. You'd better do so, or marriage can become a major crisis.

It has always been revealing—and a complete surprise to me—how two youngsters just out of their teens can so suddenly transform themselves into mature parents. But it happens all the time. The "little delinquents" grow up into fine men and women.

Grandmothers: please note.

Yesterday I was standing in front of a food store waiting for a copy of my daily paper. Out came a very young-looking grandma with a grandson who looked about two. She had a remarkable sense of humor. The package-boy put her grocery bags into the car and she helped the little fellow in. Then she turned to the package-boy and said (apparently including me as a listener): "For years you try to get your daughter married. At last she goes off and in a year or so she brings THIS back. I've never worked so hard in all my life"! Then she turned and kissed the little fellow and drove off.

Mrs. C., Chicago: "My doctor says I have a dropped kidney. It is a normal kidney which functions well. What shall I do about it?"

A: I can only guess that your own doctor told you to forget all about it. If so, I agree.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "Allergy-Disguised Attacker," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling charges. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, c-o this newspaper.

Bible Thought

H. B. Dean

"Then Agrippa said unto Paul, thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself." Acts 26:1.

Every man must live with himself, and speak for himself but to please God, must never live unto himself. We are our brothers keeper.

They Pray Again

Prayers In Schools Are Not Forbidden By Our Constitution

There has been quite an excitement over the question as to whether children in public school may be required or even permitted to pray. The Board of Regents of the State of New York had worked out a non-sectarian prayer. A group of parents objected to prayers of any kind and brought suit. Their grounds were that by having a prayer the State of New York was sponsoring religion. It made it an offense to advocate religion in a school building but not to advocate party politics.

Mind, the state was not accused of sponsoring a particular religion but any kind of religion. What the parents had in mind was the highly advertised slogan about the separation of church and state. It is presumed that the Constitution of the United States discusses this profound subject. Yet one may search word by word, letter by letter, and he will find not one word in the Constitution about separation of church and state or anything forbidding prayers in school or the singing of Christmas or Chanuka hymns, or for that matter the reading of a Hindu sutra.

As Associate Judge Charles W. Frossell, who is a top man among Masons, said about calling daily prayers unconstitutional that it is stretching "the so-called separation of church and state doctrine beyond reason."

But then there are many who call themselves rationalists who often go beyond reason in matters of religion. They fear beyond words that a child may grow up to know God, or Moses or Jesus, or Micah, but they have no fear of Karl Marx or Frederick Engels or even Stalin. Some persons, these days, are so secular that they worry lest their children discover that Man has had a long history and that history did not start in 1933.

Associate Judge Marvin R. Dye called the prayer "a form of state-sponsored religious education." How the learned Judge reached this conclusion, it is difficult to understand, particularly as he makes the point that the use of the prayer overstepped "a clearly defined line of demarcation between church and state."

If the line is so clearly demarcated, how come that cases are constantly being brought in the courts on the issue? How is it that there is such a difference of opinion on the subject, so that when a decision is handed down, there is such a division of opinion among the judges? In a word, Judge Dye's "defined line of demarcation" is not yet a defined line. It is a very shaky line, about which too many of us are quarreling. It is an issue which will never be solved because too many emotions are aroused by the very mention of the subject.

In the United States, religious groupings are as intense as nationalistic groupings are in Europe. Furthermore, the competitive nature of American society expresses itself in religious movements as in all else. Advertising and public relations methods are used to keep adherents in active membership and there is a constant effort to increase membership by propaganda. All religions and sects engage in this activity, even advertising in newspapers and bringing their quarrels out into the open.

During the Roosevelt regime, the trend in all things became liberal and many liberals moved over into Communism. This was true among the clergy as it was of professors and students in universities, and every once in a while, it was shocking to discover a clergyman supporting and defending a doctrine which is atheistic in its essence, and a party which has made atheism part of its creed. This dichotomy was often explained but it was never understandable.

However, since those days, this trend has lessened, as has the trend to bring sects together into co-operative efforts. Today, each religious group makes its strongest appeal to its own kind to keep it distinct, separate, and segregated. The assimilationist is not as popular as he was when Hitler stirred men's consciences. Today, each group prefers to stand alone and brooks no interference.

The atheist has also been active, fighting for his cause. He is always the spearhead in a battle against such evidences of religion as prayers in schools. He opposes prayers per se as opiates. We shall have to make up our minds: whether our moral sanctions are to be determined by religious creeds or by atheism and rationalism. The atheists may be forcing the issue.

Wasting Of Mac

General's Handling Of Cuban Liberation Can Be Imagined

WASHINGTON, D. C. — When Humpty Dumpty falls, he can never be put together again. Too often this rueful nonsense of the nursery rhyme has portentous, unhappy implications in our times.

Those who watched General Douglas MacArthur, 81, give his magnificent performance, and receive his tremendous welcome in the Philippines, could see for themselves the invaluable asset that this man's commanding presence and deep intellect were for our side in the Far East — and indeed, everywhere.

Imagine how a MacArthur would have handed the liberation of Cuba from Castro, and how the Cubans, Spanish - descended like the Filipinos, would have felt toward America if such a man were our symbol of power, wisdom and responsibility.

Less dramatic because less personalized is another fall-of-the-mighty in our land. The Business Advisory Council (1933-61) is an institution, like MacArthur, but not an individual. Yet it did unique and irreplaceable service to us throughout two wars, large and small depressions and countless other crises. The story needs no retelling in detail. News stories have recounted the "divorce." The BAC, after almost continuous bickerings since January with Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, gave up its 28-year quasi-official status as adviser to the Commerce Department. The BAC reconstituted itself as a Business Council without portfolio. It moved out of the small suite which, under ten secretaries, it had occupied in that department.

The country is worse off in losing the services of MacArthur and the BAC. It is not difficult, and very tempting, for the democratic press to poke fun at autocratic figures, as both the general and this group have been. It is much more a la mode to find "dignity" in some bum or harlequin or show-off who is tweaking the noses of respectability.

Lesser men have, at times, failed to sense the grandeur in MacArthur and to comprehend the popular response that he is able to engender. There is much more excuse for an inability to perceive the immense influence for public good and sound government that an exclusive group of the biggest businessmen can have as an unpublicized, untrammeled adviser to the federal government.

How much easier it is, because less thoughtful, to feel envious and left - out, and to deride these grand figures rather than revere and conserve them.

The most regrettable similarity in both instances is that each of these losses was peventable. Neither should have happened. During the Korean War, things finally reached such a pass that President Truman almost had to fire MacArthur. A commander in chief simply cannot put up with a general who writes complainingly to a congressman. Junior officers have been disciplined for the same thing.

Mr. Truman was showing his presidential power, and not his statesmanship, when he permitted the situation to reach that point where only the harsh decision was possible. A man of wisdom in the White House would have taken forethought. It should have been imperative that we not destroy such a priceless resource to the United States and the free world.

Much the same can be said about the deterioration of relations which caused the BAC to walk out of its home in government. The fuss began and climaxed in a personality clash between Secretary Hodges and the BAC officials. First, there was the aftermath of the scandals in which several big electrical manufacturing firms and officers were convicted of anti - trust violations. Hodges took the lead in hounding Ralph Cordiner of General Electric out of the latter's chairmanship of BAC. Then, Hodges, reputedly the businessman member of the Kennedy cabinet, began to demand drastic changes. He insisted that he name the BAC membership which former secretaries had merely rubber stamped. He wanted meetings and minutes made open to the press. In the past the BAC-government get - togethers have been cozy, confidential huddles, the opposite of publicity events. The secretary was hostile — the BAC was huffy. The divorce was inevitable.

But this impasse should never have been reached. Mr. Kennedy should have acted early and with force, even if it meant squelching a cabinet officer rather than lose the BAC.

PROVIDENCE JUDGEMENTS, LIENS

Total Of $90,000 In Bowman Action

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — Judgements and tax liens against the Bowman interests totaling approimately $90,000 are pending suit here, it was revealed Friday.

The Bowman interests operated a boat factory here until last November when operations were taken over by ESCAP.

The factory was destroyed by fire of undetermined orgin several weeks ago.

The legal actions are against Bowman Industries, Inc., and Bowman Manufacturing, Inc.

A writ of seizure and attachment by the parish police jury, which reportedly met on the situation three times this week, is included.

The jury's action is for $26,192 against the Bowman interests and seven insurance policies made payable to Bowman and ESCAP.

ESCAP was organized to take over operations of the factory when Bowman Industries went out of business.

The factory was constructed in 1958 to entice a payroll on a $450,000 bond issue. Bowman had made one payment of some $16,000 plus interest before defaulting in October.

A payment of $17,000 plus interest by the police jury followed, leaving a total of $185,000 payments outstanding.

Of the total bond issue, $215,000 was used for the factory, while $235,000 went for interest.

The U. S. government has filed a tax lien for $14,344.30. Suits also are pending by the American Liability Co. for $5,052.61. U. S. Rubber Co. for $13,500 and East Carroll Lumber Yard for $6,429.53. Another is Attwood Brass Works, Grand Rapids, Mich.

At the time the boat factory burned, the plant was not in full operation. Some $75,000 in stock and private sales was sold to get the plant going again after Bowman dropped out, and went for operating expenses.

The steel building, which was destroyed by fire, was erected at a cost of about $70,000. The police jury bought 16 acres of land for $2,000 and $125,000 worth of movable property to get the factory into operation.

ESCAP has title to the lakeside property consisting of several buildings and eight acres of land.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

'Siren Chasers' Only Make Things Difficult

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of those nuts who, whenever they hear a siren, must follow it? I am married to one. We have followed more fire engines, ambulances and squad cars! This husband of mine is an incurable thrill-chaser. Is there any way I can discourage this childish habit? —SIREN CHASER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It's people like your husband who make it difficult for firemen, rescue squads and police to reach the scene where they are needed. Many lives have been lost, and homes burned to the ground, because curious spectators have created a traffic problem. Tell your overgrown boy that when he hears a siren he should pull over to the curb. Period.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was recently transferred. He has a good office position with a firm which has branches in many cities. His employer (one of the owners of the company) invited us to dinner at a very expensive place. It was a most enjoyable evening.

I told my husband we owed them an invitation, and should have them to our home for dinner. He said an employee never entertains his boss as it will look as though he is polishing the apple. I told him he was wrong; that if his boss didn't want to socialize with us, he wouldn't have entertained us. I still think we owe them an invitation.

We aren't trash. My husband and I are both educated, and are in no way inferior to the boss and his wife. I feel cheap. I'd like your opinion. —HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You are right. If you accept an invitation — you should reciprocate.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is from several people who work in an office. We are tired of keeping a certain co-worker in cigarettes. This person has never been known to buy a package of cigarettes, but "borrows" them constantly from everyone else (and never pays back). Can you offer some clever and subtle way to let this cigarette-bummer know that we are fed up with that cheap bit? —THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: Why attempt to be clever or subtle? Give the cigagrette-bummer a more round, more firm, more fully packed "no"!

Moscow Radio Wants Berlin Negotiations

LONDON (UPI)—Moscow radio, apparently reflecting growing Soviet concern over the strong Allied stand on Berlin, called Friday for a settlement by negotiation.

Moscow radio commentator Vladimir Zhukov, in a broadcast beamed to the United states, chided the West which he said failed to offer constructive ideas in its recent replies to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's memorandum on Germany.

"The German problem must be settled at the negotiating table;" Zhukov said.

The commentary followed a hint Thursday from the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Mikhail Menshikov, that there might be an East-West conference on Berlin before the end of the year.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

They Could Prevent Brutality To This Child

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Any decent individual is tortured by tales of cruelty to children. Their helplessness is exploited when all they experience is brutality. They need to grow up in a world where people love them and are kind to them, as this reader knows.

"Dear Mrs. Eldred:

"This is not one person's opinion, this is the consensus of aunts, uncles and grandparents. We have a 5-year-old whom all of us love very much and it just kills us to see what is happening to him. This is a child of my sister's former marriage. She remarried two years ago and has a 9-month-old child by this second marriage.

"This older boy was happy, loving, exceptionally good child before his mother's remarriage. He is still good—God help him—for if he isn't he is beaten—and I mean beaten—squelched and punished terribly by his stepfather.

"If one toy is out of place, if he doesn't sit up straight at the table, if he licks a finger, if he takes a piece of candy without permission—he is punished.

'NERVOUS WRECK'

"We don't understand why his mother puts up with it. The child is a nervous wreck and we don't see why she can't see it. We have found out that he beats her, too, which may be one reason she says nothing. This man's manners are terrible, he swears all the time, leaves his clothes lying around but tells the boy, 'Don't do as I do, do as I say.'

"When we visit them he makes the boy get down off our laps on the pretense that his room isn't clean. When he is with us for a few hours, he goes through a third degree later about what we have said to him.

"How long can this go on? We feel this man is mentally sick."

What prevents all of you interested relatives from expressing your opinions to both the stepfather and mother? How can "you" stand to see this child so mistreated?

IT'S UP TO YOU

If his mother hasn't the courage to complain to authorities, what is to prevent you from doing so? I would say to this man frankly, "You are treating this child brutally. If you continue to do so we shall complain to the police and have you brought up in court for your behavior."

You may also tell the mother that whatever she decides to do, you will stand behind her. If this man is mentally sick, then he needs treatment, but, meanwhile, you cannot, as responsible individuals, see him torture this child and remain silent. That makes you as much at fault as he is.

You can always apply to the courts, to your rabbi, minister or priest, to a Family Social Service, to the Humane Society. Anyone of these will tell you how to handle such a situation.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Approximately 100 persons heard Dr. Emery P. Bliesmer, director of the McGuffey Reading Clinic at the University of Virginia, discuss "Phonics — Phonetic or Fanatic" at Northeast Louisiana State College Friday afternoon.

Dr. Bliesmer's discussion was part of the remedial reading workshop program being held this summer at Northeast State.

A noted author of articles concerning education, Dr. Bliesmer declared that phonics definitely had a place in the teaching of reading but that other devices also should be utilized.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

Union Army Is Strengthened

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

President Lincoln didn't go to bed the night of the battle of Bull Run.

Earlier that hot Sunday of July 21, 1861, when the news from Manassas was good, the President had gone for a drive.

About 6 p.m. Secretary of State William H. Seward hurried to the White House. There he saw John G. Nicolay and John Hay, the President's secretaries. He asked if they had any late news from the battlefield.

Nicolay began to read one of the earlier optimistic dispatches.

"That is not so," Seward broke in. "The telegraph says that McDowell is in full retreat and calls on General (Winfield) Scott to save the capital. Find the President and tell him to come immediately to Gen. Scott's headquarters."

LINCOLN PLANS

That evening the President lay on a lounge in his office and heard the story of disaster from some of those who had returned early from the battlefield. He said nothing but must have made mental notes, for in two days he had drawn up a private memorandum on military policy which included strengthening the blockade, reinforcing the armies in lower Virginia and in the Shenandoah Valley, reorganizing McDowell's shattered troops, sending more troops for the northern Virginia sector and pushing operations in the west.

By Monday, July 22, the full impact of the Bull Run disaster could be read on any Washington street.

Fleeing officers arrived first because they had horses. Then came the streams of rank and file across the Long Bridge from the Virginia side, weary, footsore, hungry and with the terror of battle still in their eyes.

CONGRESSMAN CAPTURED

Mathew B. Brady, the first to photograph a war, straggled back without his wagon — mounted darkroom — and minus his camera.

Rep. Alfred Ely's fancy carriage returned without the New York congressman. He had been captured hiding behind a tree. The Confederates said he was carrying a pair of dancing pumps in anticipation of a victory ball in Richmond.

Something of the wild despair in the North was expressed by Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, in a private letter written to President Lincoln a week after the battle.

Dated July 29th at "midnight" the letter read in part:

"This is my seventh sleepless night — yours, too, doubtless — yet I think I shall not die, because I have no right to die . . . Can the rebels be beaten after all that has occurred . . .? If they can — write me that such is your judgment, so that I may know and do my duty . . . . If the Union is irrevocably gone, an armistice for thirty, sixty, ninety, one hundred and twenty days — better still a year . . . . ought at once be proposed."

MISS CHANCE

Secessionists still in Washington — and there were many — openly rejoiced over the Confederate victory and twitted the Unionists, predicting the Confederates would be there the next day.

But the Confederates didn't come. They were as disorganized as the Federals.

Gen. George B. McClellan did come on the 26th, however, to take command of what was left of the Army, ordered in the day after Bull Run.

Never one to underestimate difficulties, McClellan described the Washington scene that day:

"I found no preparations whatever for defense, not even to the extent of putting troops into military positions. Not a regiment was properly encamped, not a single avenue of approach guarded. All was chaos, and bar-rooms were filled with drunken officers and men absent from their regiments without leave — a perfect pandemonium. Many had even gone to their homes, their flight from Bull Run often terminating in New York or even New Hampshire and Maine. There was nothing to prevent a small cavalry force from riding into the city. . . If the secessionists attached any value to the possession of Washington, they committed their greatest error in not following up the victory at Bull Run."

ORDER RESTORED

McClellan organized a provost guard of regulars and put it to work rounding up the stragglers and getting them back to their regiments.

By Aug. 4 he could write to one of his family that "I have Washington perfectly quiet now . . . . I have restored order very completely already."

In Richmond, the Confederate capital just under 100 air miles south of Washington, there wasn't much sleep either.

The first wave of joy over the victory soon gave way to grim satisfaction when the hospital trains began to arrive. Wounded overflowed the hospitals and drawing rooms became wards. Military funerals, instead of parades, filled the streets.

Yankee prisoners were viewed with curiosity by ladies of the first families who drove in their carriages past the Libby sugar house which the day after Bull Run became a prison that soon would be notorious.

Several men offered buards $10 for a look at Congressman Ely, who eventually was freed and allowed to buy new clothing. He regained enough of his sense of humor to smile when he was handed his passport written on brown paper. With the war barely started, shortages already were appearing.

SCENTS VICTORY

Col James Chesnut, a former South Carolina senator and an aide to Gen. P. G. T. Beauregard at Bull Run, carried the battle news to his diary-writing wife, Mary.

A few days later Chesnut made a speech at a reception in the Confederate White House where he was being lionized.

No one reminded him that night at the reception that he had made another speech in late 1860 in Charleston soon after South Carolina had seceded.

Then, perhaps carried away by the occasion, Chesnut had said:

"The man most averse to blood might safely drink every drop shed in establishing a southern confederacy."

Now, after the battle at Manassas Junction, he knew better.

Bull Run whetted the Southern appetite for more and better victories.

The Richmond Examiner kept prodding President Jefferson Davis to capture Washington and overrun Pennsylvania, Maryland and Ohio with an army of 500,000 which, the newspaper contended, could be raised in six weeks, without saying how such an army could be fed, clothed and equipped. The southern army at Manassas already was complaining about the lack of rations and it numbered hardly a tenth as many men as the newspaper was demanding.

As July wore on and August came, the realization that Davis would not send his army against Washington raised the first opposition to the Confederate president, which would burn fiercely throughout the war.

NEXT WEEK IN THE CIVIL WAR

United Press International, 1861

July 25 — Maj. Gen. John C. Fremont named Western Department commander at St. Louis.

July 26 — Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan arrives in Washington to reorganize Union Army after Bull Run disaster.

The Lincoln Hospital in Washington cared for 56,000 patients during the Civil War.

How To Keep Well

X-RAYS DURING PREGNANCY

A woman in the childbearing years should not have X-rays of the pelvic region except during the first nine days following the onset of menstruation. This is the advice of Dr. Roberts Rugh, professor of radiology at Columbia university.

The early embyro is extremely sensitive to radiation. Since a woman does not suspect pregnancy until a period is missed, she should avoid exposure to X-ray prior to the period because she might be pregnant.

This does not apply to X-rays elsewhere, such as to the chest, extremities, head, and upper abdomen. Here, lead shields may be used to protect the pelvic area, especially the region of the uterus.

The ovum undergoes rapid cellular changes following conception and the form of the fetus and the internal organs is completed by the end of the third month. X-rays early in pregnancy may alter development and produce stunting or abnormalities of the brain, nervous system, heart, and other structures. The severity of any malformation is related directly to the total dosage of X-ray and the week of gestation.

The chances of getting into trouble are greatest up to the seventh week because the nervous system is under development at that time. But in all fairness to X-rays and radiation in general, it must be mentioned that certain viral infections may produce comparable changes in the fetus during the first three months of pregnancy. Many mothers to be who develop German measles, for example, during this time deliver babies with defects of the heart, eyes, or ears.

PEPPY OR PEPLESS

O. Z. writes: Why do some people have more energy than others?

REPLY

These differences stem from the physical and nervous markeup and the health status. Races also vary in that some are more passive than others. Climate also is a factor; we have all heard about the enervating effects of the tropics.

MIDWAY PAIN

G. W. writes: Does ovulation cause symptoms?

REPLY

Some women develop pain in the lower abdomen midway between periods (mittelschmerz) when an ovum ruptures from the ovary. In these women, the capsule surrounding the avary is thicker than usual. Pain stems from local injury and the small amount of blood that irritates the membrane lining the pelvis.

IN SHOCK

F. L. writes: How does a person act when he has heart attack?

REPLY

There is not much action, except to clutch the chest in an effort to relieve the feeling of constriction. The majority sit or lie quietly, afraid to move or talk. They look anxious, the skin becomes ashen, and beads of perspiration form on the brow.

SQUINTS IN THE SUN

Mrs. U. writes: My 2 year old daughter squints when I take her out in the sun. Does this mean she has something wrong with her eyes?

REPLY

No, as most of us squint when exposed to direct sunshine. Protect her eyes with a bonnet. If you think the squinting is excessive, have her eyes examined.

TYPES OF EPILEPSY

F. R. writes: Can a person have epilepsy without convulsions?

REPLY

Yes. In petit mal, for example, the victim may manifest only momentary loss of consciousness. Send a stamped, self - addressed envelope for leaflet on epilepsy which describes the three chief types of this disease.

100 Attend Field Day At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — Approximately 100 area farmers attended the Sixth Annual Field Day at the Macon Ridge Branch Experimental Station here Friday.

Under the direction of Superintendent John A. Hendrix and Sherman A. Phillips, manager of the Branch station, the field day was held in cooperation with the College of Agriculture Experiment Station and the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service.

Beginning the day's activities was a tour of experimental plots which exhibited results of corn and cotton variety tests and fertilization with and without irrigation.

Other experiments shown were of cotton rotation, sources of lime and nitrogen fertilizer, dates of planting and rates of nitrogen fertilizer.

A general assembly held following the tour featured L.S.U. and experiment station personnel as principal speakers. Discussing experimental station coton research organization was Dr. John Roussel, coordinator of the program. He presented a thorough exposition of the main station in Baton Rouge which does basic research in the laboratory and applied research in the fields. He also covered branch stations which assist growers in various areas of the state.

The branch stations are in Bossier City, St. Joseph, Winnsboro and Lecompte, which has a newly organized program.

Dr. Jack Jones of the L.S.U. agronony department evaluated results of research in commercials an dnew strains of cotton varieties.

A six-year summary, 1955-61, of winter grazing beef calves was explained by John C. Carpenter who is in charge of animal husbandry at the Northeast Experimental Station.

LeGrand Sloan of the northeast station in St. Joseph spoke on the importance of cotton machination and a demonstration was given of how to set flame cultivators for varying conditions.

MEMBERS ARRIVE

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The United Nations announced Friday that 197 of the Congo Parliament's 221 members have arrived for the reopening of Parliament, expected soon after a 10-month recess. Separatist Katanga is the only one of the Congo political factions not represented at the session at Lovanium University, the U.N. said.

Jury Trial Is Requested By Registrar

Mrs. Mae Lucky, Ouachita parish registrar of voters and object of a federal government civil rights injunction lawsuit, has asked for a trial by jury.

Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack P. F. Gremillion and Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter filed a motion Friday with the federal clerk of court in Shreveport, asking for the trial and for a copy of the FBI report on 1956 and 1960 investigations of the local registration rolls.

Last August, Mrs. Lucky and Lassiter refused to allow Civil Rights agents to inspect the registrar's office, but Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr. ruled on November 30, 1960 that the inspection could be made.

At that time, he pledged that if a lawsuit should result from the inspection, he would instruct the government to supply local officials with a copy on the federal report.

Lassiter, who will represent Gremillion in defending Mrs. Lucky, has asked for an extension of the 20 days allowed to file an answer, after the July 11 filing date of the lawsuit.

He wants the extension to give him time to receive the government's report.

Mrs. Lucky and 19 members of the Ouachita Citizens Council are defendants in a lawsuit filed by Attorney General Robert Kennedy, which charges that 4,800 Negroes were illegally removed from the voter registration records in the last five years.

The lawsuit asks that the Negroes be returned to the voter rolls.

Officials Back From Hearing On Gas Rates

West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris and City Attorney Charles Traylor returned Friday from Baton Rouge where they attended a special hearing of the Louisiana Public Service Commission, relative to United Gas Company rates to West Monroe residents.

The city is seeking to bring about a reduction in these rates.

Norris and Traylor appeared with representatives of United Gas before the full commission, including Commissioner John J. McKeithen and board members Ernest Clements and Nat Knight Jr.

They indicated that no firm action was taken Thursday, aside from groundwork for a further hearing. United Gas was allowed 30 days in order to produce records pertinent to the case and a tentative date for a second hearing was set for sometime in September.

Both the city officials were back in their offices yesterday.

Driver Charged After Accident

A 21 year old Downsville Negro man Friday night was charged by Monroe Police with driving while intoxicated and reckless driving after he ran a stop signal on Pine and Walnut, striking another vehicle.

Marshall Gyce going East on Pine crashed into the right side of a car driven by Herman J. Maynor, 45, of 905 Short Ranson in West Monroe. Maynor's wife, Margaret, 28, and four year old daughter, Sandra, both were reported to have suffered minor injuries. Mrs. Maynor was said by police to have been near shock, while the child seemed only to have sustained a cut lip.

The accident occurred shortly before 11 p.m.

Passengers in the Gyce automobile, which he claimed not to own, all Negroes, were Johnny B. Armstrong, 20, of Farmerville; Eyvonne Moses, 25, female, also of Farmerville; James Norton, 20, of Minden; John Henry, 17, Marion; and Horace Hampton, 19 year old Farmerville Negro.

Delegate Says U.S. Will Keep Reds From U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will try to keep Nationalist China in the United Nations and Communist China out when the issue is raised at the General Assembly this fall, U.S. Ambassador Everett F. Drumright said Friday.

Drumright made the statement after a conference with President Kennedy.

Kennedy discussed China policy with Drumright for nearly a half-hour this morning. Drumright returned from his Formosa post two weeks ago, bringing bitter Nationalist China complains against U.S. moves toward recognition of Communist Outer Mongolia and signs of a new approach on the China membership issue at the United Nations.

"You may be sure that we will try to come up with a solution that will keep our ally, the republic of China, in (the United Nations) and the Reds out," said Drumright.

He said, "it's a matter of tactics."

He acknowledged that there were signs that the United States could not win again this year a vote to postpone debate on the China issue.

TRIED SUICIDE

'Rider' Says He 'Didn't Mean It'

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Elmer Brown, a Negro "Freedom Rider" who tried to hang himself the day before he was freed on bond described the attempt as a despair of the moment.

"I didn't mean it," he told The Associated Press Friday in a telehone interview set up by the ride-sponsoring Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). "It was an act to try to relieve pressure or something."

Brown, 20, a University of Akron, Ohio student, was sentenced to $200 fine and 4 months in jail for breach of peace in desegregating a Trailways bus station July 7.

Hinds County Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy said Brown tried to hang himself with his belt Thursday but he was cut down by jailers before he could hurt himself.

Earlier Thursday, Brown accused CORE of letting him down when he didn't get the $500 bond money he had requested.

CORE officials said they had been working on the bond but that it took time to process.

During his interview, Brown said he was under pressure of the sheriff during a press conference when he told newsmen CORE had let him down.

"I was sort of threatened with other charges if I didn't give in to what he (Gilfoy) was saying," Brown said.

"I have not and did not say that CORE had let me down in any way. I feel that CORE is very strong in the South and will continue to grow. CORE has not mistreated me. CORE has taken care of me."

The other charges to which he referred apparently were implications that he had taken narcotics. Gilfoy said he found 17 pills in Brown's bible case and was having them analyzed.

Brown said he had small needle spots on his arm.

"I never used narcotics," he said. "I never will. But I have needle spots on my arm and I don't know how they got there. I don't know when this occurred."

BATH, England (A) —John Palmer, 19, civilian clerk for the Royal Navy, was fined $56 Friday for unauthorized possession of confidential documents. FORD WINS 17TH

Yankee Homers Shellack Bosox

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP)—John Blanchard pinch hit a grand slam homer in a typical New York last ditch rally Friday night for an 11-8 come-back victory over Boston and saved Whitey Ford's 11-game winning streak.

Down 8-6 in the top of the ninth inning, the rollicking Yanks closed the gap on two walks and a Yogi Berra single.

Mike Fornieles, third Red Sox pitcher, walked Bill Skowron intentionally and had two out when Blanchard delivered the first grand slam of his major league career 400 feet to the bullpen in right center.

With one swing of his bat, Blanchard pulled out a victory, keeping the Red Sox from nullifying early home runs by Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Berra.

Blanchard's was the sixth pinch hit grand slam home run of the year in the American League, setting a major league record for one season. The old mark was five, set by the American League in 1953.

Mantle had hit his 37th homer in the opening inning, three pitches after Maris tagged his 36th as the pair continued their battle for American League supremacy.

Ford (17-2) was driven out in a four-run Boston fifth inning built on a double, two singles, four walks and a wild pitch. He was not involved in the decision, but Blanchard's blow kept him from being charged with the defeat.

The Yankees built up an early 6-3 lead when they broke a 2-2 deadlock on Berra's 12th homer, a two-run affair down the right field line in the third inning. New York added two more in the fifth on a Tony Kubek double, a walk, a Mantle single and a force play.

Mantle's run-producing single pushed him into an 86-85 lead over Maris in the runs batted in department.

Yankee bullpen ace Luis Arroyo was the winner, while Arnold Earley, whom Fornieles replaced, got the loss.

Aaron Homers Spark Braves 5-3 Triumph

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Henry Aaron socked his 21st and 22nd home runs of the year and drove in three runs Friday night, sparking the Milwaukee Braves to a 5-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Aaron's first homer of the night came in the first inning following a double by teammate Frank Bolling. His second blast was a bases-empty shot over the left field wall in the sixth.

The wiry right fielder also hit a single and scored a run in the fourth inning for a three-for-four night at the plate.

Right-hander Lew Burdette (11-6) received credit for the victory but needed help in the eighth when the Pirates exploded for four hits and two runs. However, Don Nottebart came in from the bullpen to retire the next two batters and end the threat.

Burdette allowed 10 hits, fanned three and walked one in his 7 1-3 inning stint.

Singles by Bill Virdon, Dick Stuart, Don Hoak and Smoky Burgess and a sacrifice fly by Bill Mazeroski accounted for Pittsburgh's two runs in the eight.

The Braves pushed across their final tally in the seventh on a single by Lee Mays, an error, an infield out and a sacrifice bunt by Roy McMillan.

Pirate starter Bob Friend was charged with the loss, his 12th in 21 decisions.

Redlegs Obtain Hurler Johnson Of International

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have bought the contract of right-handed pitcher Ken Johnson from Toronto in the International League, General Manager Bill DeWitt announced Friday.

The 28-year-old Johnson was expected to report to the Reds before Saturday's game with the San Francisco Giants.

Johnson, who can both start and relieve, had major league experience with the Kansas City Athletics during parts of the 1958 and 1959 seasons. He pitched the whole 1960 season, appearing in 42 games and compiling a 5-10 record.

Nunn On Reds' Disabled List

CINCINNATI (AP) — Howie Nunn, 25-year-old rookie knuckleball pitcher, was put on the disabled list Friday by the Cincinnati Reds, retroactive to last Wednesday.

He has been plagued with pains in his right elbow since June 18 when he beat Philadelphia in nearly eight innings of relief.

General Manager Bill DeWitt said the Reds plan to obtain a replacement pitcher, but gave no indication who it would be.

Ferriday Meets Oak Grove Boys For Area Title

FERRIDAY, La. (Special) — The Ferriday All-Stars and the Oak Grove All-Stars will meet in the district Little Boys baseball final playoff next week, each gaining the title series with victories last night over Mangham and Lake Providence.

Ferriday defeated the Mangham Stars, 8-4, in the finals of their sub-district tournament here, while Oak Grove was winning out in the sub-district meet at Epps by defeating Lake Providence, 11-1.

The Ferriday - Oak Grove best-of-three series will begin Monday.

Ferriday played errorless ball to topple a Mangham club that made nine miscues. Darrell Reid, Gary White, and Juhu Brabham, the latter the winning pitcher, led Ferriday's eight-hit attack with two hits apiece. Carl Paillette delivered a three - run homer for Mangham, his second of the tournament, and Robert Bell hit 2-for-2 for Mangham which was held to six hits. Newton Bruce pitched for Mangham.

Butler was Oak Grove's winning pitcher, and Fairchild pitched for Lake Providence.

Rival pitchers shared matching six - hitters, but Farmerville made the most of the one big inning.

Bill Halley was the winning pitcher. John Porter, the loser, got seventh inning relief from J. W. Mercer.

Porter led Ruston's cause at bat with two hits, including a triple. Joe Zaffater also got two safe blows for the Ramblers.

Yankees Take Seven Events Dispite Hurts

By ED CORRIGAN

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. walking-wounded track team won seven of 10 events to run up a solid 60-44 lead against Great Britain Friday night in the first half of a two-day meet but suffered another casualty.

High jumper Bob Avant, who finished second to John Thomas, left the field with a limp and said he had trouble with his ankle. He didn't try to go above 6 feet, 10 inches for fear of aggravating the injury.

Both Avant and Thomas cleared 6 feet, 10 inches but Thomas was given the decision because of fewer misses.

"What next?" moaned U. S. head Coach Jim Elliott. "if this keeps up, we'll have the whole team laid up."

A crowd of about 15,000 turned out at White City Stadium in wretched weather for the first dual meet ever between the two countries.

Rain fell off and on and a chill wind whipped across the field.

The Americans were 1-2 on the 120-yard high hurdles the high jump and the half-mile. They also won the 440-yard run, 440-yard relay, 100-yard dash and javelin throw.

Great Britain swept the 3-mile run and won the shot and the hop, step and jump.

In addition, the American women's team won three of four events — including an American record broad jump by Willye White of Chicago — to take a 23-21 lead.

"I wanted to make sure that I'm in shape for the meet against Poland next weekend," said Avant later in the dressing room. "There was no use taking a chance when we had won the event."

Pole vaulter John Uelses, hop, step and jumper Bill Sharpe, javelin thrower John Fromm and sprinter Paul Drayton all are out of this meet with assorted injuries.

In addition, Jerry Siebert of Willits, Calif., ran the half-mile with a bad cold and sore leg. He finished second to Dyrol Burleson, U. S. mile record holder, who did 1:52.7. Siebert was only about a yard back at the finish.

"What was I to do?" shrugged Siebert. "The team needed the points."

Hayes Jones of Pontiac, Mich., hustled to a :13.9 victory in the 120-yard hurdles, beating out Fran Washington of Santa Clara, Calif., who was caught in :14.1.

Frank Budd, the world record holder from Villanova, captured the 100-yard dash in :09.7. Dave Jones and Peter Radford of Britain were second and third respectively, and Chuck Frazier of Engleton, Tex., was fourth. All were clocked in :.09.9.

Chuck Wilkinson of Redlands, Calif., won the javelin throw with a 230 ft.-11 in. toss, and the 440-yard relay foursome of Jones, Budd, Frazier and Earl Young whipped home in 40 seconds flat.

Great Britain had a bad break when anchor man Alf Meakin dropped the baton taking the hand off from Radford. However, the Americans had a solid 4-yard lead at the time.

Gordon Pirie won the 3-mile run for Britain in 13:16.4, followed home by barefooted Bruce Tulloh, who clocked 13:16.6.

Max Truex, of the U.S. Air Force, was left behind in the last lap when the two Britons turned on the speed, but he came home in 13:21 for an American record. The listed mark is 13:28 by Jim Beatty.

LITTLE BOYS TOURNAMENT

Northside All-Stars Play Undefeated North Bossier

Northside West Monroe became the only local team to remain unbeaten, by smashing South Bossier City 11-2 here last night in the second day of the Fourth District Little Boys baseball tournament.

But by their excellence they earned the dubious god fortune of facing undefeated North Bossier City in the feature battle tonight at 8 p.m.

Southside West Monroe eliminated Springhill, blasting them 12-3 and North Bossier boosted its mark to 2-0 with a 4-2 win over Ruston - Bernice in other action.

Also on tap for today is a Westside - South Bossier scrap at 4 p.m. and a tilt between Ruston - Bernice and Southside West Monroe at 6.

BLAZIER ON THE MOUND

Allen Blazier was the hero of the Northside team's win, coming in to relieve starter Jimmie Griggs in the second with the bases loaded and no one out. Blazier retired the side and finished the game without letting in a run. In fact he was tagged for only two hits in turning in a tremendous performance.

Northside jumped to a quick three - run lead in the first, but found it in jeopardy when South Bossier pushed across one in the second, before Blazier's arrival.

Behind his mound craftmenship, however, and the rapping bats of Shug Jordan, Larry Ashley and Gene Gates, they shoved across a marker in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth.

Blazier also helped on a double-play in the third that further frustrated South Bossier. He fired to Rickey Gates on second, who relayed to Gene Gates, covering first.

Jordan collected three for four, Ashley two for three, and Gene Gates, despite a leg injury, batted in three runs and scored two.

Dale Ward, Donny Jones and Allen Cook each got one of the four hits Bossier was allowed. Cook and Dickey Grishem were the losers.

Northside is now 1-0; South Bossier, 1-1.

SOUTHSIDE WINS

Southside West Monroe returned after its loss Thursday to paste Springhill 12-3 and dump them from the tourney. Springhill had previously lost to Ruston-Bernice. Gary Audrisch collected this win, effectively holding the losers to five hits.

But the real highlight of the game and the key to Southside's win was the fourth inning when they erupted volcano - fashion with a red-hot overflow of 10 runs.

This overcame a 3-2 Springhill and completely erased the visitors' chances. Both clubs were deadlocked 2-2 after the first and Springhill grabbed a momentary one-run edge in the third.

Tommy Woodward was the loser, going the route and allowing 10 hits.

Mike Ferlicca and Ronnie Miletello hit both two for three for Southside, while Audirsch aided his cause greatly with two doubles in five trips.

Dan Standord and Gary Farley paced the Springhill attack.

TOUGH BOSSIER

North Bossiers' Larry Hudnell led off the climaxer with a homer in the second and this proved the difference for five full frames as Ruston - Bernice battled them run for run in the last encounter. With the score only 3-2 their favor, Bossier did slip across one more in the last inning for a little more padding.

The winners notched two runs in the third, but Ruston-Bernice got an identical two their bats that frame.

The side-arm hurling of big Ed Alurcombie wilted Ruston-Bernice except for that brief second stanza uprising, but Ruston's James Smith did almost equally well run-wise.

Bossier managed six hits, Ruston two.

Second sacker Ronnie Jenkins came up with one of the night's sharpest plays in the fourth for Bossier, going on his knees to snatch a sharp grounder, then rising for the whip to first in time.

SIMMONS 10-1 VICTIM

Cardinals Spike Dodgers' March

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals backed veteran Curt Simmons with a 12-hit assault led by hot-hitting Joe Cunningham and clipped Los Angeles 10-1 Friday night, dropping the Dodgers two full games from first place.

The defeat ended a four-game Dodger winning streak. Cincinnati's game with third-place San Francisco was rained out.

Simmons, now 5-7 got his second straight victory under new Redbird Manager Johnny Keane, who has guided the Cards to 11 victories in 16 starts. Simmons had a shutout until the ninth, when two singles and a walk loaded the bases and he walked home a run.

Cunningham drove in four runs with a three-run home run, his sixth, and two singles, in five trips. The surging Smokey Joe now is batting .297.

Don Taussig had two doubles and one RBI and Bob Lilis, a former Dodger, two singles.

Cunningham's homer, his sixth, came off Jim Golden in the eighth inning as the Cards scored on each of the three Dodger pitchers.

Singles by Ken Boyer and Stan Musial, Taussig's double and sacrifice flies by Julian Javier and Carl Sawatski gave the Cards three runs off Don Drysdale in the second inning.

They knocked out Drysdale, who absorbed his sixth loss to go with seven decisions, in the fifth. Singles by Simmons, Bob Lillis and Cunningham brought in one run and Bill White hit a sacrifice fly to score Lillis.

Gonzalez Hits Homer, Phils Win In Tenth

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tony Gonzalez clouted his seventh home run of the season with one out in the 10th inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

With a two-strike, no-ball count, Gonzalez drilled one of Barney Schultz' knuckle balls over the right field wall. It was the sixth straight game in relief for Schultz while Jack Baldschun received credit for the Phils' victory, his fourth in five decisions. Schultz has won three and lost two.

Don Cardwell and Jim Owens earlier locked in a 1-1 duel until the sixth when Don Zimmer bounced a single off Ruben Amaro's chest and Bill Williams homered off the light standard in center field. He made the circuit, his 13th, standing up.

The Phillies needed four walks and a single by Clay Dalrymple to score one run while chasing Cardwell in the seventh. Then in the eighth Dalrymple singled home the tying run off reliever Bob Anderson after Gonzalez singled and went to second on a bunt.

14 Starters For Juvenile Chase Today

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Fourteen 2-year-olds—the unpredictables—were named Friday to run in the $100,000 added Hollywood Juvenile Championship Saturday.

This is the third straight and last weekend of Hollywood Park's hundred-granders but the track winds up its season Monday with the $75,000 added Sunset Handicap for older horses.

Heading the juvenile field in their first try at a distance of 6 furlongs are the Maine Chance Farm's Gun Glory, Rancho Rio Hondo's Indian Blood, Mr. and Mrs. L.I. Nelson's Snappy King and Fred Tuerk, Jr.'s Port of Mecca.

Other hopefuls include Rex C. Ellsworth's Eight Ball, C.V. Whitney's Killoqua and Rattle Dance and Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Stenberger's Doc Jocoy.

If all 14 start, the gross purse will be $148,300. The winner will collect $103,300.

Others entered are Guaranteeya Weldy, Mr. Pilgrim, Tru Fritz, Scrumptious and Donut King.

Gun Glory, with Ray York riding, and Indian Blood, with Angel Valenzuela up, share high weight honors at 122 pounds as previous stakes winners, while Snappy King, with Jockey Eddie Burns, packs 119. The others carry 116.

Jockey Johnny Longden, who won the Hollywood Derby on Four and-Twenty and the Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap on Prince Blessed, will be seeking his third straight $100,000 added purse on the much traveled Port of Mecca.

Crampton Shoots 64 For Milwaukee Lead

Four Sharing Second After Rainy Round

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Unheralded Crampton of Australia conquered a rain-soaked golf course in 6-under-par 64 for a 36 hole total of 134 and a one-stroke lead Friday at the halfway mark of the $30,000 Open.

The 25-year-old Aussie, who has earned only $1,530 in 15 previous tournaments this year, carded seven birdies, including five on the back nine, in coming within one stroke of the North Hills Country Club competitive record.

Crampton's tremendous effort on the 6,410-yard course enabled him to edge past a four-way deadlock at 135. Bunched at that total were Don Massengale, Dave Marr, Tommy Bolt and Stan Leonard.

Massengale, who shared the opening round lead at 65 with Frank Hawkins, added a 70 during a heavy morning downpour. Marr alo brushed aside raindrops for a brilliant 65, while Bolt and Leonard each carded 68s.

Hawkins slipped to a one-over-par 71 and was left two strokes off the pace. Tied with the El Paso, Tex., veteran at 136 were Tommy Veech of Milwaukee, Masters champion Gary Player, former U.S. Open king Bill Casper Jr. and Don January.

Despite the rain, many of the nation's touring pros made a joke of par for the second straight day. And, with two rounds remaining and the field closely bunched, no one was making any predictions.

Seven players were tied with 137 totals. They were Jackie Burke Jr., Tom Nieporte, Rex Baxter Jr., Bob Goalby, Tony Lema, Charlie Sifford and Pete Fleming.

Another stroke back at 138 were Don Fairfield, Gay Brewer Jr., Al Balding, Mike Souchak and Milwaukee amateur Archie Dadian.

Also within striking distance at 139 were Ken Venturi, Don Whitt, Jacky Cupit, Lee Raymond, Miller Barber, Paul Harney, Pete Cooper, NCAA champion Jack Nicklaus, Russ Ruveson and Joe Moore Jr.

Crampton hit 16 greens in regulation figures and needed only one putt on eight of them. He ran into trouble only on the 15th when his tee shot went into the rough and he wound up with a bogey 5.

The field was cut to the top 82 pros and 10 amateurs, for Saturday's third round. Pros with 36-hole totals of more than 145 were eliminated.

Englehorn, Faulk Shoot 69s To Lead

ROCKTON, Ill. (AP) — Unheraled Shirley Englehorn of Spokane, Wash., who turned pro 10 months ago, and veteran Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., shared the lead at 3-under-par 69 in Friday's first round of the Cosmopolitan Women's Golf Open.

The rain-soaked first session of the 54-hole meet over par 37-35—72 Macktown course left the favorites, including defending champion Betsy Rawls, lagging well behind.

It took a superb second shot, leaving her 3 feet from the pin on the 18th hole, for Miss Faulk, winner of the 1958 inaugural Rockton meet, to gain the first-place tie.

One stroke behind the co-leaders was another little publicized contender, Sybil Griffin of Mount Clemens, Mich., who shot 36-34—70.

Mulloy Drums For Tennis Czar

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—Rain washed out all play in the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament Friday, an interim which caused elder tennis statesman Gardner Mulloy to suggest that Gardner Mulloy might be a good czar of the game.

Tennis is pretty much like the weather, in that everybody talks about it, but nobody does anything about it. The 48-year-old Mulloy, however, thinks the game could be stepped up with proper promotion, like lively sponsorship by commercial firms.

Mulloy got warmed up on the what's wrong-with-tennis subject as the day's program of one singles semifinal match in both the men's and women's divisions and quarter-final doubles play was delayed until Saturday.

The weeklong tourney at River Forest Tennis Club is scheduled to wind up Sunday, although adverse weather could extend the meet into next week. Saturday's men's semifinals include Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, No. 1 seed, vs. Jon Douglas, and Don Dell vs. Dennis Ralston.

The women's semifinal competition includes one match sending top-seeded Karen Hantze against Donna Floyd and the other pitting Germany's Edda Buding against Billie Jean Moffitt.

Mulloy, who still is in the running here as a doubles contender with Australia's Robert Mark, goes along with a popular suggestion that pros and amateurs should compete in open meets.

The game in this country, Mulloy asserted, should be controlled by a well-paid czar. "Me, or Billy Trabert or Jack Kramer has guts enough and know-how to handle the job," said Mulloy.

Mulloy declared that automobile companies, beer companies, soft-drink dispensers and other business firms are looking for ways to spend promotion money.

"Why not put that money behind a big tennis meet," said Mulloy.

Mulloy said the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association is overly cautious in its sincere effort to promote the game.

"The big thing about having open tennis meets is that a controlling commissioner—say me—could get firms to promote big meets."

If he had his way, Mulloy would encourage spectator enthusiasm, including band music; would limit matches to two out of three sets; and encourage press agentry to the extent of flamboyant court dress.

"Why wear all white," questioned Mulloy. "The biggest promotion the game ever had was Gussie Moran's lace panties."

Mulloy said it would probable take time to make the "big sell" on tennis, but suggested that within five years proper promotion could get big crowds cheering and yelling for top players.

AFL Unhurt By Ruling On NFL TV Deal

DALLAS (AP)—The American Football League's television contract will not be affected by the federal court ruling that held the National Football League's contract a violation of the antitrust laws, AFL Asst. Commissioner Milt Woodard said Friday.

"Our attorneys inform us that our contract is widely different from that of the NFL," Woodard declared. "For instance, the NFL forces all games to come back to the visiting city whereas the AFL has no such restriction. And there are numerous other differences.

"Our attorneys, who have studied the NFL contract, say ours is entirely legal and we do not expect to encounter any difficulty in carrying it out with ABC."

Woodard contacted Washington lawyers who are handling the AFL affairs but did not talk with Commissioner Joe Foss, who is vacationing in Minnesota and won't return until Sunday.

"I imagine the commissioner aready has this information," Woodard said.

Federal Judge Allan K. Grim ruled in Philadelphia Thursday that the NFL's $9,300,000 package deal for two years with CBS violated the antitrust laws because it eliminated competition among the league members in the sale of television rights to their games.

Woodard said provisions of the AFL contract had been transmitted to the Justice Department in June, 1960, and no objections had been received.

BAUER LAST SINGLE WINNER

Kansas City Edges Tigers From Lead On 3-2 Squeak

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics knocked Detroit out of first place in the American League Friday night with a 3-2 victory over the Tigers as Manager Hank Bauer singled home the winning run in his swansong as an active Player.

The New York Yankees took over first place by half a game with an 11-8 victory over the Red Sox in Boston.

Jim Archer, Kansas City southpaw, held Detroit to six hits and notched his seventh victory. He has lost five. Phil Regan (9-5) was the loser.

Bauer, who began his major league career with the Yankees in 1948, and has been a playing manager since replacing Joe Gordon last month, was given a new motor car, a steer and a shotgun. He retired after the sixth inning with two hits in three times at bat and made a throw that had the Bauer trademark.

Rocky Colavito, who had walked was on first and Al Kaline on second in the sixth inning when Norm Cash singled into right field. As Kaline scored, Colavito tried for third but Hank rifled a throw to Wayne Causey that nailed Rock for the out. The Tigers also had scored in the fourth on Bubba Morton's double and a single by Steve Boros.

The A's scored three in the third and knocked out Regan. Norm Siebern doubled to drive in Dick Howser, who had singled, and Jerry Lumpe, on base with a walk. Bauer's second hit drove Norm home with the big run.

A crowd of 16,548 was on hand for the victory and to honor Bauer who has made his home here since 1948 when he played with the old Kansas City Blues in the American Association.

Bauer, who will be strictly a bench manager henceforth, gave an exhibition befitting the great competitor who helped the Yankees and Manager Casey Stengel win nine pennants and seven World Series titles. He was traded to Kansas City after the 1959 season.

The victory also was welcome to Bauer whose charges have won only five of the last 21 games and were in a six-game losing streak.

Lee And Green Combine As Twins Whip Indians

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Injury-plagued Don Lee of the Minnesota Twins tossed a no-hitter for 7 2-3 innings Friday but had to rely on an infield run-scoring single by Lenny Green for a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Jose Valdivielso was on second base with a fielder's choice and a stolen base with two men out when Green topped a twisting roller down the first base line. Valdivielso raced all the way home when pitcher Joe Schaffernoth and first baseman Tito Francona waited for the ball to roll foul.

Bubba Phillips' homer in the top of the ninth tied the contest and left it up to Green.

Lee had been sailing along, facing only 25 men in the first 7-23 innings—two over the minimum.

After Chuck Essegian was called out on strikes and John Romano grounded out to lead off the eighth, Woodie Held lined a 2-2 pitch into the left center field bleachers.

Pinch hitter Don Dillard followed with a single and John Temple slashed a two-bagger to right. When Lee dropped Jim Piersall's liner back to the mound for an error, Dillard scored the second run.

The Twins tallied their first three runs in the fourth inning. Bob Allison drew a walk to lead off the frame. Earl Battey's 10th home run scored two.

Bill Tuttle then followed with a single, stole second and rode home on Jose Valdivielso's bounder through the middle.

Lee walked only two men and struck out six in pitching his second season victory against a pair of setbacks. He was never in trouble until the eighth, allowing no runner past first base.

Allison's lone - handed running catch of Piersall's fly ball in the first inning and Harmon Killebrew's leaping stab of Willie Kirkland's line drive in the seventh preserved Lee's no-hitter until the fatal eighth.

This was Lee's first start since a June 5 loss to the Yankees in New York. The tall right-hander had been shelved with a series of nuisance injuries and the measles throughout most of the season. He just returned and has been used in relief roles.

Loser was Joe Schaffernoth (0-1), who relieved starter Wynn Hawkins after Hawkins was lifted for a pinch hitter in the wild eighth.

BOASTS WIN STREAK

Kelso After 11th In Brooklyn Run

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso will go after his 11th straight victory Saturday in the Brooklyn Handicap at strike-beleaguered Aqueduct in a bid for a sweep of the big handicap triple.

Eleven horses were named for the $113,800 Brooklyn at one mile and a quarter and they kept arriving during the day from their stables at other tracks.

Kelso, the odds-on favorite at 1-2 in the overnight line, was vanned in from Belmont during the afternoon. So was Don Poggio easy winner of the $112,300 Monmouth Park Handicap last Saturday.

Yorky came in from Monmouth in New Jersey early Friday morning and had to be walked into the barns when his van driver refused to cross the picket line of striking stable hands and exercise boys.

Others in the field of 11 who were on the scene when Friday's racing program closed included Polylad, Sweet William and Our Hope.

Kelso will carry 136 pounds in his bid for the triple handicap sweep completed only by Tom Fool in 1953 and Whisk Brook 2nd in 1913. Tom Fool also carried 136 pounds. The only other Brooklyn winner to tote 136 pounds was Discovery in 1936.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who will be up on Kelso Saturday, rode him to victory in the Metropolitan Handicap at one mile May 30 with 130 pounds and in the Suburban Handicap July 4 at one mile and a quarter with 133 pounds.

Don Poggio, to be ridden by Sam Boulmetis, was second weighted at 124 pounds and rated 5-1 on the line. Yorky, 122, was listed at 6-1 and Our Hope, 116, 8-1. All the others were 20-1 or higher.

The others with their weights were Whitley, 107 and Mamboreta 107, coupled as the Arnold Hanger-King Ranch entry; Polylad, 116, Sweet William, 106, Reinzi, 113, Francis S., 112 and Divine Comedy, 118.

Whitewash Job Drops Magnolia

FERRIDAY (Special) — Gary White pitched his first shutout of the season Wednesday night to spark the Ferriday All-Stars to a 4-0 win over the Magnolia All-Stars in the nightcap of a doubleheader in Bi-District Little Boys Baseball play.

White struck out 12 batters and gave up only one hit in going the route.

For the winners, Dan Richey and John Bradham had doubles and there were no extra base knocks for the losers.

In opening action, Winnsboro defeated the Tensas Parish All-Stars 8-1 to eliminate them from the tournament.

Glen Harris was the winning pitcher and Grady Humphries was credited with the loss. For the winners, Wilby Campbell and Paul Feeries each clouted homeruns.

Tigers Acquire House For Chiti

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, strapped for catching help, acquired Frank House, a left-handed hitter for whom the club once paid out a $72,000 bonus, Friday.

Detroit acquired House from Rochester of the International League in a trade for Harry Chiti, who had been playing with the Tigers' Denver farm. It was a straight player swap.

House, 31, will report to the Tigers at Kansas City, where they start a four-game series Friday night.

Detroit has had only one experienced catcher, Mike Roarke, since regular Dick Brown was placed on the disabled list last Sunday. Brown suffered a fractured finger and will be sidelined for possibly two months.

House was hitting .267 with Rochester and had three home runs and 20 runs batted in.

Tech Ducats Go On Sale August 1

RUSTON (Special) — Season ticket sales for Louisiana Tech's four home football games this fall will start Aug. 1, according to Joe Aillet, athletic director.

Aillet said persons who held season tickets last year will have until Sept. 1 to purchse ducats for the same seats this campaign.

Tech's four home opponents include Arkansas State on Sept. 23, Southwestern Louisiana on Oct. 7, Mississippi Southern on Nov. 11, and Northeast State on Nov. 18.

All will be night tilts except for the Southern game which will be at 2 p.m., and will be the Tech homecoming. Two of the 1961 home foes, Arkansas State and USL, handed the Bulldogs their two defeats last year.

Cost of season tickets to the four home games is $8.

Nagle Continues Brilliant Streak In Irish Meet

WOODBROOK, Ireland (AP)—Kel Nagle, 40-year-old Australian golfer, kept up his brilliant streak Friday by leading the field in the first round of the $15,540 Irish Hospital Tournament.

Nagle, who won the French Open title two days ago and has won well over $5,600 this month, shot a 64. That was one stroke over the record for the 6,088 yards course.

For British players, success in this tournament can mean a place on the Ryder Cup team. Peter Alliss, leading British player this summer, shot a 65 and Ryder Cup Capt. Dai Rees had a 66.

Rees went out in 32 but marred his card by taking a seven at the 14th, hooking his drive out of bounds on to the nearby beach.

Rees' partner Harry Weetman, who is struggling desperately for Ryder Cup points, also returned a 66.

Miss Tolar Becomes Bride Of Mr. Parker

Miss Joyce Elaine Tolar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Tolar became the bride of Alvin Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Parker, all of Jonesville in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Harold Dunn, pastor of the Wallace Ridge Baptist church, Jonesville, in the home of the bride's parents on Friday evening, July 7, at 5 p.m.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a ballerina length dress of white with a fitted lace bolera and elbow - length sleeves. She carried a white Bible topped with a corsage.

Miss Doris Edwards, pianist, accompanied Miss Susie Kirkland, a cousin of the bride, as she sang "Always."

A reception was held in the dining room of the bride's home.

Close friends and relatives of the bride and groom attended the event.

The couple will make their home in Wallace Ridge community, near Jonesville.

NAM TELLS CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — The National Association of Manufacturers told Congress that "fewer jobs, and poorer jobs" would result from withdrawing the favorable tax treatment now given to stock options awarded by corporations to their executives. NAM Vice President John C. Davidson made the statement before a committee considering a bill to subject profits of stock option plans to regular income taxes.

Questions And Answers On Home Decorating

Q: What color awnings would you suggest for my small Cape Cod house? Roof is light grey, trim, doors and shutters are white. The house itself is light pink. I need awnings, and don't want them to make the house look even smaller. I am told pink tends to fade quickly. Would you like light grey? If so, what color fringe?

A: Light grey would be fine, white fringe would be prettiest color with it and will help awnings to blend with the surrounding window facings. Remember that awnings will make your rooms seem darker. If you are currently bothered by dark rooms, I would suggest painting inside of shades white.

Q: What color walls for my living and dining rooms? Living room is large with stone fireplace flanked by two small windows, ceiling has dark mahogany beams. Furniture is mahogany with sage green, dark green, toast and black fabrics in upholstery, rug is green. The rooms are quite dark.

A: Deep heavy look of stone and wood beams coupled with small windows would make any room seem dark. Unless you have a strong preference for natural wood and stone, I would advise painting everything pale gold, sage green or off-white. If you wish to keep beams and fireplace as they are, paint walls clear white. Add touches of white and strong yellow elsewhere in the room.

Q: I would like my bedroom to look smart rather than pretty. I would like green and white peppermint striped flounces and yellow quilted cover on the bed, a green tweed rug. Furniture is light wood. What color walls, curtains would you suggest? What treatment for high strip windows: What color accents for chair and pillows?

A: For a smart look, I would use tailored skirt on the bed rather than flounces. Unless you already have the yellow quilted coverlet, make a tailored cover for the bed in white with narrow flat braid trim in solid green. Paint walls a pale yellow-gold and use a green rug. sliding shoji type panels of the green and white stripe would be distinctive at windows. These could be stretched on rods at top and bottom of the window. Chair might be covered in strong chrome yellow velvet and pillows of moss, yellow - green and sky blue could be used on bed.

Household Hints

If the cords on drapery traverse rods are coated with a thin layer of petroleum jelly, they will work more smoothly.

For all types of exterior walls use a brush from three to six inches wide. Before painting, remove scaled paint.

When removing summer drapes and slipcovers from storage, use your automatic dryer to revive them. The tumbling procedure will aid in loosening wrinkles and removing musty odors.

Miss Bonnie Gaye McGee Honoree At Bridal Parties

Prenuptial courtesies are being given complimentary to Miss Bonnie Gaye McGee, daughter of Mrs. Harold McGee and the late Mr. McGee, and bride-elect of Jackie Davis Norton, son of Mrs. Jack Norton and the late Mr. Norton. The couple will be wed on August 15 at Central Baptist Church.

Mrs. Leslie F. Semmes was hostess in her home on Bayou Shores for a miscellaneous shower Tuesday, July 18, honoring Miss McGee.

Arrangements of dahlias and zinnias were in evidence throughout the living room. The dining table was centered with a massive arrangement of zinnias flanked by tapers.

For her party, the bride - elect wore a white polished cotton dress with a corsage of carnations and mums. Mrs. Semmes chose a blue linen sheath.

Among those invited to the party at 7:30 in the evening were: Mesdames D. W. Fox, Jack Ponder, Jack Rutledge, J. R. Spurlock, T. R. Spurlock, Juett McGee, Harold McGee, Jack Norton, Misses Kay Fox, Shellia McGee, Laverne Semmes, the honoree and hostess.

BRIDAL SHOWER

Miss McGee was entertained with a bridal shower on Friday, July 14, in the home of Mrs. M. R. Harvey in Choudrant. Hostess with Mrs. Harvey was Miss Mary Jo Truett.

Centering the refreshment table was an arrangement of white gladioli interspersed with greenery. Miss Mary Jo Atkins poured punch, while Miss Truett served.

For this party, the honoree chose a white polished cotton dress with embroidered bodice.

Invited to call between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock were: Mesdames R. J. Truett, Fred Atkins, Algie Collie, Roy Davis, Juett McGee, H. B. Stewart, Mitch Hammons, Earl Colvin, Hayden Hammons, E. O. Griffin, O. E. McGee, Jack Norton, Harold McGee, Joe Davis, Misses Shellia McGee, Mary Jo Atkins, Mary Beth Griffin, the honoree and hostesses.

Beauty Tip For Busy Wives

In the midst of a busy homemaking schedule, it isn't always easy to take a break for beauty.

Few housewives can afford the luxury of an hour or two in a salon or even primping before the mirrors of their dressing tables. Yet, despite the demands of a chore-packed day, it is possible to pay an adequate amount of attention to appearance.

Here's the secret passed along by Miss Violet Hackim, a fashion and beauty co-ordinator. Simply take your beauty preparations right along with you — right into the kitchen, where you spend most of your working day. If a jar of cold cream, for instance, is at hand, you're more apt to use it for a "quickie" facial while you're waiting for a cake to bake than you would if it required a jaunt upstairs. Besides, the kitchen actually is an ideal place for complexion care since the usual activities of cooking or laundering produce steam which, teamed with a nourishing cream spread on your face, gives desirable lubrication to the skin.

To make this catch-as-catch-can beauty program really work for you, it's a good idea to set aside a small area for an "auxiliary dressing table." A little shelf attached to the inside of a closet door, a box containing good grooming equipment tucked into a corner of a counter top or in a drawer is all you'll need in the way of space.

Fit the kitchen kit with its own set of accessories, bought especially for it, not borrowed from your more complete assortment in the bedroom or bath. Into it put powder, rouge, lipstick, tissues, a comb and a nail file for emergency nicks. It's a wise idea, since space will be at a premium, to choose smaller editions of your favorite beauty preparations.

Since preparations will be so conveniently at hand, use them frequently when you come to a temporary lull in the days work. Smooth cream on your face before you start the dinner — leave in on to penetrate into and clean your pores while you stand cooking at the stove. Or, time permitting, sit at the kitchen table while the laundry is being done in your automatic washer and gently massage the cream into the areas around eyes, at the corners of of your nose and mouth to erase lines which may be forming there. The job over, whisk away traces of cream, apply power base, a dusting powder, rouge and lipstick and you're ready to greet the family or friends when the door bell rings — without a hurried trip to the boudoir or bathroom.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Inviting Neighbors To Party Solved Problem

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice is usually sensible, but I was pretty shook when you suggested the lady invite her next door neighbor to her weekend barbecue parties just to prevent her from hanging out her wash and ruining the view.

Please, Ann, tell me you were on vacation and some pinch hitter wrote that answer. I'd sure hate to think it was you. KALAMAZOO-LU

Dear Lu: What's a vacation? I write this column 365 days a year and when I grab a few days off, the work is done in advance by Yours Truly.

Now, about that advice that shook you up. I said it — and I meant it. Please read the next letter:

Dear Ann Landers: You must have a large dose of extrasensory perception, or else a special wire that sends out vibrations to Phoenix.

I had the same problem which appeared in your column recently. After reading your advice I decided to try it, so I invited my next door neighbors to our barbecue that Saturday night. My husband said I was crazy (and he said you were too) but he agreed to go along with the experiment.

Well, Ann, not only was there no wash hanging out that day, but they hired a man to manicure their lawn so it would look nice. And the woman and her husband turned out to be a sparkling addition to the party and you can bet we shall ask them again. FRIENDS NOW

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teenager in tears. My father insists that every fellow who takes me out in a car show him his driver's license first. Did you ever hear of anything so dumb?

Last Friday night I had a date with a very swell guy who just happened to have forgotten his driver's license. My Dad told him to go home and get it or I couldn't go out with him. The fellow walked out mad, and there I sat. I'm sure he will never ask me out again.

If my dad keeps this foolishness up he will ruin my life. I am 15 years old and I need your help. DEBBIE

P.S. I was in a little accident last year with a fellow who had no driver's license, but it was not serious.

Dear Debbie: Sorry, but I'm with Dad. He has the right (and the obligation) to determine in advance whether or not the fellow who is taking his 15-year-old daughter out is a licensed driver. You are his most valuable possession and should not resent it when he places a high value on your safety.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for "Ann Landers'" booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

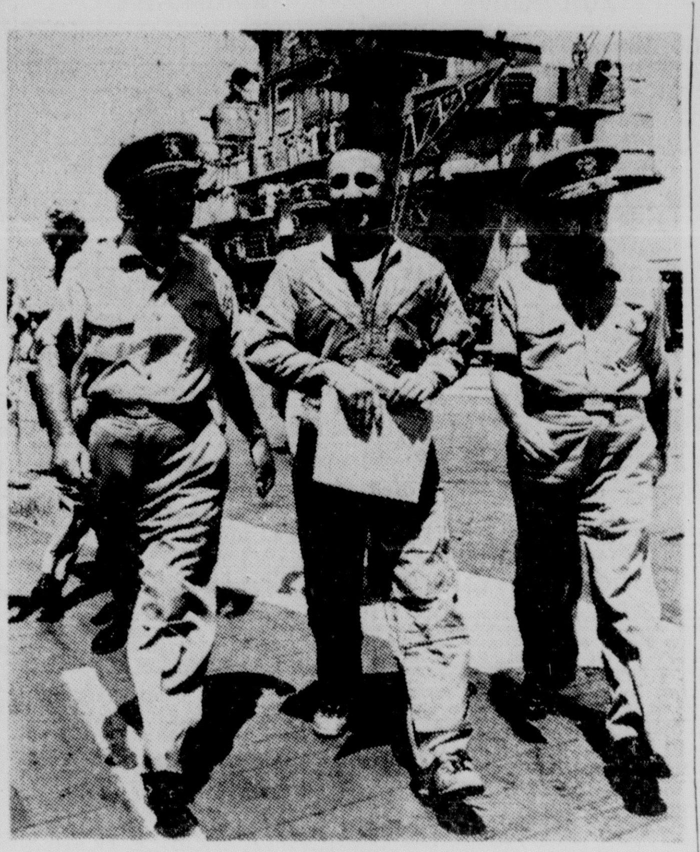
ASTRONAUT VIRGIL GRISSOM is welcomed aboard the carrier Randolph after he was plucked from the sea following his space flight from Cape Canaveral Friday. (AP Wirephoto)



ASTRONAUT VIRGIL GRISSOM, an Air Force Captain, grins as he walk along deck of the carrier Randolph wearing an orange Navy flying suit. When he got the suit, Grissom said, "I've been trying to get one of these things for years." Virgil Grissom 'Swims' Into U.S. Hall Of Fame

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom elew into his nation's space hall of fame Friday — but only by dint of swimming the last 70 feet or so of his 303-mile trip.

His Mercury man-in-space capsule, Liberty Bell 7, sank in more than three miles of water 145 miles east northeast of Grand Bahama Island in the Atlantic.

But the 35-year-old Air Force captain, America's second spaceman, got out in time. He swallowed some sea water however before a rescue helicopter dragged him from the waves. Officials blamed a new fangled hatch which unaccountably blew off shortly after the capsule landed.

Thirty-four minutes after he took off from this shooting gallery of the space age, the 150-pound light weight of the seven Mercury astronauts arrived safely aboard the aircraft carrier Randolph.

He was "a bit shaky" and weary but otherwise sound. Hardly had he arrived aboard the recovery ship when President Kennedy was on the radiotelephone voicing "great pleasure and satisfaction" over Grissom's successful flight.

Accepted Congratulations

Three hours and 44 minutes later he was on Grand Bahama Island accepting congratulations from Space Administrator James E. Webb for "a wonderful job."

Grissom flew the space route pioneered May 5 by Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. whose hop of 15 minutes and 22 seconds carried him 302 miles to sea after hitting a top altitude of 116½ miles and a maximum speed of 5,180 miles.

Grissom rose to 118 miles, miles reached a peak velocity of 5,230 miles an hour, and came down 303 miles down the Atlantic missile range. His flight lasted about 15 minutes.

President Is Elated By Flight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elated by America's second astronaut flight, President Kennedy Friday signed legislation authorizing him to speed U.S. efforts to beat Russian in landing a man on the moon.

But he said success still was a long way off.

The President acted shortly after he phoned congratulations to astronaut Virgil I. Grissom aboard the aircraft carrier Randolph. The Air Force captain had just been fished from the Atlantic.

In a radio-telephone conversation, the Chief Executive expressed "great pleasure and satisfaction."

Follows Flight On TV

Kennedy was awakened about 10 minutes before Grissom's Redstone rocket blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., and followed the flight on television in his bedroom.

Congressional space experts hailed the shot as a giant step toward matching Russia's feat of putting an astronaut into orbit around earth.

A number of the experts watched Kennedy sign the bill allowing the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to spend $1.8 billion this year, including about $400 million for the man-on-the-moon project. Weather and communications satellites also will be rushed.

He said overwhelming congressional approval of the measure demonstrated united support for a new and vigorous U.S. space program. He said it showed this country was determined to occupy an important place "in the race for the far reaches of space."

The Chief Executive said, however, that a manned landing on the moon still was many years away.

Kennedy's goal is to put a U.S. astronaut on the moon by 1970. The project may cost as much as $20 billion in the next 10 years.

Burglary Suspect To Be Extradited

Monroe officials Friday began proceedings for extradition of a local Negro, George David, alias George Underwood, subject of an October 15, $1959, Grand Jury indictment for simple burglary.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said the offender was picked up on a lesser charge last week by Pittsburgh, Pa., police. He subsequently refused to sign an extradition waiver.

Extradition proceedings normly require around three weeks for completion, the spokesman said. David, or Underwood, is being held under $1,500 bond.

Chamber Manager To Attend School

West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Manager Eugene Smith will leave Sunday for Houston, Tex., to take part in a sppcial one week National Chamber of Commerce school being conducted on the campus of the University of Houston.

Included in his study will be such subjects as Chamber management, financing, organization and function of committees, publicity and economic philosophy.

A final examination will be conducted on Saturday, July 29, according to Smith, and the manager expects to return to his office Monday, July 31.

MILD QUAKE

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) —A mild earthquake jogged Formosa Friday. No casualties or damage were reorted.

Orbital Manned Effort May Be Next For U.S.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Despite a mysterious ending with spaceman Virgil I. Grissom swimming to safety from a sinking capsule, Friday's manned rocket flight may be the last before America tries to put an astronaut in orbit around the earth.

The goal for full orbital flight is late this year or early 1962.

Both astronaut and spacescraft performed excellently in the 118-mile high leap down the Atlantic range Friday, scientists said, and loss of the Mercury craft will cause no set back in the man-in-space program.

Robert L. Gilruth, Mercury project director, would not commit himself on whether further suborbital rides will be needed because "we don't know" until carefully studying data from Grissom's flight.

ROUTINE

But, significantly, Gilruth told newsmen there was "very good progress" toward making space rides "routine."

Still unexplained at a late hour, however, was the reason that the side hatch blew off Grissom's capsule after he landed 303 miles down range and caused him to make an exit which Gilruth described in an understatement as "not entirely according to plan." Grissom had to make off into the water from the flooding capsule, swimming and floating in his pressure suit several minutes until a helicopter picked him up.

One report was that he removed the masking tape from a hatch safety switch in case he needed it and the next thing he knew the side hatch's explosive bolts flew it into the air. In a normal operation, he would have come out on the top, dry. In any event, an astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. observed afterward, Grissom proved the feasibility of one more item in the spacemen's intensive training — how to get out of a capsule even if it fills up with water.

RECOMMENDS CONTROL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — ICC Examiner William J. Gibbons Friday recommended that the Pennsylvania Railroad be allowed to acquire out-right control of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Gibbons reommended that the Pennsy be permitted to take over 44 per cent of the Lehigh Valley stock held for it in an independent trust for voting purposes and acquire complete control through an exchange of stock.

Astronaut Couldn't Care Less About His 'Prestige'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Virgil Ivan (Gus) Grissom couldn't care less about the personal prestige he gained from Friday's rocket ride into space. He's that kind of a modest, unassuming character.

Anyway, he once reminded an interviewer, the glory will be short-lived. It will be washed off by bigger, headier triumphs in the American space program—like the first thrust of an American into orbit, and the coming flight to the moon.

For a space man, Grissom's attitude is strictly down to earth.

When someone once compared the American astronauts with the famous aviation pioneers, the Wright brothers, Grissom remarked that the Wrights "did the whole job themselves."

ALON GFOR RIDE

"I'm just going along for the ride," he said.

On another occasion, Grissom, 35, called the spacecraft in which he rode Friday "just another new type vehicle," like the many hot aircraft he had broken in as a test pilot.

And the danger of rocketing into space, he added, perhaps wasn't as great as U. S. troops faced on D-Day, when they rode across the English Channel toward Europe and, for all they knew, slaughter by Nazi forces.

This nonchalant attitude doesn't mean that the rather short, slender, Grissom took his job lightly, or that fear did not grab at his heart when the hatch swung shut on the capsule Liberty Bell 7.

"I'm going to be scared," he admitted beforehand. "But I know it's going to work."

Mrs. Gilmore, Mother Of City Resident, Dies

RAYVILLE (Secial) — Mrs. Lou Ella Gilmore, 77-year-old Rayville resident and the mother of a Monroe woman, died Friday afternoon in a local clinic.

Mrs. Gilmore was a native of St. Marks, but had lived in Rayville for about 14 years where she was a member of the Shady Grove Baptist Church.

Funeral services have been set for 3 p.m. Saturday at the Oak Grove Baptist Church, near Winnsboro, with the Revs. Weaks and T. S. Bass officiating. Interment in the Oak Grove Cemetery will be under direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home of Rayville.

Mrs. Gilmore is survived by five sons, Philip Gilmore, LaRose, Abner Gilmore, Galliano, Steve Gilmore, Wisner, and Gaio and Sam Gilmore, both of Rayville; three daughters, Mrs. Myra Middleton and Mrs. Odell Middleton, both of Rayville, and Mrs. John Dickens, of Monroe; 32 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be grandsons.

The body will lie in state today until about 2 p.m. in the home of Sam Gilmore, near Rayville.

WILL OPEN NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON (UPI) — The Daily Mail said Friday that Britain soon will open negotiations to join the European common market.

The newspaper's statement followed Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's promise Thursday to make a statement in the House of Commons on the common market on July 31.

"Macmillan will recommend to the cabinet next week" that Britain "take the plunge despite the dangers and Commonwealth objections the Mail said.

EXPRESS JUBILATION

DERRY, N.H. (UPI)—The parents of America's first astronaut, Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., Friday expressed jubilation at the successful launching of spaceman Virgil I. Grissom.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan B. Shepard Sr., told United Press International they were "very happy" with the new successful flight. They watched the launching on television at their home.

Shepard said they were "not as nervous" this time. He said they were more confident the second flight would go as planned.

Plant Adjustments Interrupt Power

Minor adjustments in equipment at the Monroe power plant shorty after midnight Friday morning and early Friday afternoon caused temporary interruptions in electricity, a city spokesman said.

The first interruption occurred about 12:15 a.m., but all was back in order, reportedly around 12:45 a.m. A second briefer break in the flow, lasting about ten minutes, occurred soon after 1 p.m.
